War in the Gulf: Lessons for the Third World Brig VK Nair, This book analyses the ramifications of the conflict for the Third World, emphasises the inescapable relationship between diplomacy, economics and military action that form part of a political whole, providing drive to States in confrontation. The mechanics of war planning within well established tenets of warfare faithfully adhered to by the American military leadership in providing the basis for war winning options are analysed. The recognized principles of war are re-examined in the light of known events to establish their efficacy in future wars. Modern weapon systems and their performance are examined with a view to validating existing war fighting theory and military doctrines influenced by the ongoing technological evolution. Military efficacy of Third World countries in the current global political environment, their strategic and technological imperatives, their politico-economic growth overshadowed by the American will to influence global ideological perceptions are analysed. The book catechizes the Gulf Conflict from a Third World point of view.

Transforming Military Power since the Cold War Theo Farrell, Sten Rynning, Terry Terriff, 2013-10-17. This book provides an authoritative account of how the US, British and French armies have transformed since the end of the Cold War. All three armies have sought to respond to changes in their strategic and socio-technological environments by developing more expeditionary capable and networked forces. Drawing on extensive archival research, hundreds of interviews and unprecedented access to official documents, the authors examine both the process and the outcomes of army transformation and ask how organizational interests, emerging ideas and key entrepreneurial leaders interact in shaping the direction of military change. They also explore how programs of army transformation change over time as new technologies moved from research to development and as lessons from operations were absorbed. In framing these issues, they draw on military innovation scholarship and in addressing them produce findings with general relevance for the study of how militaries innovate.
