Interpreting shadows arms control and defense planning in a rapidly changing multi-polar world ,1999 The focus of arms control is changing It now deals with issues affecting all nations and not just the super powers A new framework for approaching non proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and arms control could focus on a two fold policy initiative The first policy would be a new strategic triad built around conventional capability including rapidly deployable forces regional ballistic missile defense and long range precision strike capability The second policy would employ an information strategy using the current diplomatic initiatives that appear to be the most productive or unilateral and multilateral export controls military assistance in the form of infrastructure and confidence building measures Continued success in arms control requires abandoning Cold War policies Emerging policies will need to appreciate different world views Good intelligence will be a key factor in the success of any policy orientation and its implementation The focus needs to change from arms control involving the superpowers to arms control involving everyone Arms Control in a Multi-polar World James Brown,1996

conferences in shaping global defense strategies and resolving conflicts while acknowledging inherent limitations. These talks from UN Security Council meetings to regional summits serve as vital platforms for dialogue. The book argues that despite their importance, these conferences often fall short due to geopolitical realities and systemic issues, resulting in a gap between intended outcomes and actual impact. One key insight is that divergent interests among participating states frequently hinder the implementation of agreements, challenging the assumption that dialogue alone guarantees solutions to complex security problems. The book explores the evolution of global security talks through the 20th and 21st centuries, referencing landmark events like the Congress of Vienna and summits on nuclear disarmament. It presents case studies to assess the contributions of past and present conferences to conflict prevention and arms control. The book unfolds in three parts, beginning with theoretical underpinnings, progressing to detailed case studies, and concluding with a critical assessment offering strategies for enhancing conference effectiveness. This approach highlights the need for realistic expectations and effective mechanisms to translate dialogue into concrete action.

Conventional Arms Control and East-West Security Institute for East-West Security Studies, 1989. This important and timely work, prepared by the leading researchers, planners, and policymakers from both Eastern and Western alliances, analyzes the major issues in the Vienna talks on conventional forces in Europe involving NATO and Warsaw Pact nations. It is likely to have a significant influence on the course of these negotiations and on emerging debate on conventional arms control. The contributors met in Moscow prior to the Vienna conference to review and compare their analyses and revised them thereafter for publication in this work.

Interpreting shadows: arms control and defense planning in a rapidly changing multi-polar world, 1999. The focus of arms control is changing. It now deals with issues affecting all nations and not just the super powers. A new framework for approaching non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and arms control could focus on a two-fold policy initiative. The first policy would be a new strategic triad built around conventional capability, including rapidly deployable forces, regional ballistic missile defense, and long-range precision strike capability. The second policy would employ an information strategy using the current diplomatic initiatives that appear to be the most productive or unilateral and multilateral export controls, military assistance in the form of infrastructure and confidence building measures. Continued success in arms control requires abandoning Cold War policies. Emerging policies will need to appreciate different world views. Good intelligence will be a key factor in the success of any policy orientation and its implementation. The focus needs to change from arms control involving the superpowers to arms control involving everyone.

international system will turn out to be a conscious design or the outgrowth of a test of strength The concept of a planning framework that could shape or govern these interactions is emerging and may now be at hand Capturing this emerging framework is the thrust of this NATO sponsored Advanced Research Workshop      Annual Report to Congress United States. Glaser, 2014-07-14 With sweeping changes in the Soviet Union and East Europe having shaken core assumptions of U S defense policy it is time to reassess basic questions of American nuclear strategy and force requirements In a comprehensive analysis of these issues Charles Glaser argues that even before the recent easing of tension with the Soviet Union the United States should have revised its nuclear strategy rejecting deterrent threats that require the ability to destroy Soviet nuclear forces and forgoing entirely efforts to limit damage if all out nuclear war occurs Changes in the Soviet Union suggests Glaser may be best viewed as creating an opportunity to make revisions that are more than twenty years overdue Glaser s provocative work is organized in three parts The Questions behind the Questions evaluates the basic factual and theoretical disputes that underlie disagreements about U S nuclear weapons policy Alternative Nuclear Worlds compares mutual assured destruction capabilities MAD a world in which both superpowers societies are highly vulnerable to nuclear retaliation to the basic alternatives mutual perfect defenses U S superiority and nuclear disarmament Would any basic alternatives be preferable to MAD Drawing on the earlier sections of the book Decisions in MAD addresses key choices facing American decision makers Originally published in 1990 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905      Germany and Nuclear Weapons in the 21st Century Ulrich Kühn, 2024-03-12 This book is the first scholarly book to take a comprehensive look at Germany s nuclear weapons policies in the 21st century German foreign and security policy is facing a profound reorientation Great power competition between the United States and both a revanchist Russia and a rising China the return of war and nuclear threats to Europe and the emergence of new technologies all force Germany to adapt German policymakers and scholars increasingly speak of a pivotal Zeitenwende an epochal turning point in history How does Germany adapt its nuclear policies to these changing conditions The volume brings together internationally renowned nuclear scholars and policy analysts from Germany and abroad Focussing on German nuclear deterrence arms control and disarmament as well as nonproliferation policies the contributors assess how German leaders have navigated continuity and change domestically and abroad The volume concludes that Germany remains bound by dependence on the United States and its own conservatism Within these parameters German leaders have adapted slowly to change and continue to balance seemingly contradictory deterrence and
