Arrested Development Pop Culture And The Erosion Of Adulthood:

Arrested Development Andrew Calcutt,2020 Since the 1990s both politics and pop culture have been dominated by the twin motifs of the victim and the child Calcutt traces the history of these motifs back to their origins in the counterculture of the 1950s and 1960s and concludes that the counterculture far from being liberating has provided a ready made verbal and visual language for today s victim culture and the authoritarian politics arising from it This title discusses the erosion of adulthood as a pop cultural phenomenon that requires demystification and as a social problem which must be overcome

The Erosion of the American Sporting Ethos ... Reconsidered Joel Nathan Rosen,2021-01-01 This work examines American sport from its traditional roots to the influence of the 1960s era counterculture and the rise of a post Cold War ethos that reinterprets competition as a relic of a misbegotten past and anathema to American life The Erosion of the American Sporting Ethos Joel Nathan Rosen,2007-04-23 This volume provides an analysis of the nature of competition in contemporary American sport This work traces American sport from American culture to the influence of the 1960s counterculture and the resulting rise of a post Cold War ethos that continues to reinterpret competitiveness as a relic of a misbegotten past and anathema to American life Provided by publisher The Oxford Handbook of Punk Rock George McKay,Gina Arnold,2025-05-06 No Future Punk is Dead That is what was sung and said Yet as we approach 50 years of punk rock it still endures and sometime thrives From White riot to Pussy Riot Never Mind the Bollocks to Nevermind DIY to never gonna die punk rock has marked or stained it marks or stains our musical and cultural history and practice Here key established writers as well as emerging scholars from around the world offer critical views on punk practice and legacy in a timely re evaluation of its significance as music culture politics nostalgia heritage The handbook looks at pre and proto punk forms the high years of c 1976 84 the international spread of the music and style punk media from films to fanzines as well as a thread that may run through its entire history the inspiring politics of DIY Do It Yourself Crossing and blurring disciplinary boundaries it presents methodological innovations to offer new ways of understanding punk s significance The Oxford Handbook of Punk Rock also identifies and explores some of punk s core contradictions its anti war messages alongside its often gendered violence its anti racism alongside its dominant whiteness its energy and attitudinality as a youth culture for an aging demographic its intermittent but persistent flirtations with populism and nationalism Arrested Development Andrew Calcutt,2016-10-06 Since the 1990s both politics and pop culture have been dominated by the twin motifs of the victim and the child Calcutt traces the history of these motifs back to their origins in the counterculture of the 1950s and 1960s and concludes that the counterculture far from being liberating has provided a ready made verbal and visual language for today s victim culture and the authoritarian politics arising from it This title discusses the erosion of adulthood as a pop cultural phenomenon that requires demystification and as a social problem which must be overcome Philosophical and Cultural Theories of Music Eduardo de la Fuente,Peter Murphy,2010-09-14 Music is a ubiquitous and hard to grasp cultural form It is semiotically and aesthetically open ended yet even a non musical person is able to follow the basics of rhythmic structure and flow Its presence in social and cultural life is further complicated by its multiple forms of existence as both live and technologically mediated as self referential language and as accompaniment to text dance and other cultural expressions This collection brings together philosophers sociologists musicologists and students of culture who theorize the multiple roles of music through cultural practices as diverse as opera and classical music jazz and pop avant garde and DIY musical cultures music festivals and isolated listening through the iPod rock in urban heritage and the piano in contemporary Asian societies

The Terminal Self

Simon Gottschalk, 2018-01-31 Living at the dawn of a digital twenty first century people living in Western societies spend an increasing amount of time interacting with a terminal and interacting with others at the terminal Because the self emerges out of interaction with others humans and non humans this increasingly pervasive and mandatory interaction with terminals prompts a terminal self a nexus of social and psychological orientations that are adjusted to the terminal logic In order to trace the terminal self's profile the book examines how five unique default settings of the terminal incite particular adjustments in users that transform their perceptions of reality their experiences of self and their relations with others Combining traditional interactionist theory Goffman's dramaturgy and the French hypermodern approach using examples from everyday life and popular culture the book examines these adjustments their manifestations consequences and resonance with broader trends of a hypermodern society organized by the digital apparatus Suggesting that these adjustments infantilize users the author proposes strategies to confront three interrelated risks faced by the terminal self and society These risks pertain to users' subjectivity and need for recognition to their declining abilities in face to face interactions and to their dwindling abilities to retain control over terminal technologies An accessibly written examination of the transformation of the self in the digital age The Terminal Self will appeal to scholars of sociology social psychology and cultural studies with interests in digital cultures new technologies social interaction and conceptions of identity

When Brand Communication Becomes Childish. Infantilization in 21st Century Advertising Bengü Basbug, 2019-05-06 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2018 in the subject Communications Public Relations Advertising Marketing Social Media grade cum laude T C Yeditepe University Istanbul Institute of Social Sciences Media Studies Doctoral Program language English abstract Living in a media dominated age in which countless images circulate around the world we are constantly faced with an environment that has become increasingly saturated by advertising An emerging phenomenon that can be increasingly noticed in a global sense but especially in Turkish advertising of 21st century which will be explored in this doctoral thesis is infantilization Infantilization is the practice of treating adults like children and thus viewing them as if they have never grown up an old concept which appears in a great number of fields from natural sciences to social and cultural studies However infantilization received rarely attention until late 20th century even processes of infantilization had been occurring for centuries in various areas of life from religion to politics Although infantilization is not new its contemporary range of development and its influence on consumers today is Meanwhile it has reached its ultimate breakthrough in the realms of marketing and mass media culture in general Consumer infantilization increasingly becomes a technique to attract adults by approaching them like children with advertisements based on the imagination and level of a child In this sense the Turkish advertising landscape is rich in elements from children s worlds which originally address children but actually are instrumentalized in particular for adult consumer purposes Thus the purpose of the thesis is to examine and improve a deeper understanding of infantilization as an emerging phenomenon in 21st century with regard to its implementation in Turkish advertising The thesis will demonstrate how and why brands implement the concept of infantilization within the framework of their marketing strategy in advertisements Using the qualitative multiple case study research design the thesis adopts a psycho semiotic method within the postmodern worldview by analyzing selected advertising campaigns 226 commercials and 52 Facebook posts of 60 well known brands in Turkey between 2004 2018 The overriding aim of the thesis is to reveal how the ideal postmodern consumer the child like adult is attempted to create through infantilization within unconscious processes by activating psychic dynamics via childhood signs embedded in Turkish advertisements
