Creating Community In The City Cooperatives And Community Gardens In Washington D C:

Creating Community in the City Ruth Landman, 1993-06-30 Landman studies four communally oriented settings in Washington's urban environment. Through ethnographic field work she learned that cooperation, sociability, and self-management overcame the common urban challenges posed by isolation and largely impersonal, single-purpose contact with others. The settings were a cooperative food store, a cooperative bakery, community gardens, and a cooperatively owned low-cost housing project. Landman shows how the participants in these economically related activities are socially bound together in a web of relations considered unusual in large American cities and how these exceptionally connected urban lives prove very satisfactory.

Community Gardening as Social Action Claire Nettle, 2016-05-23 There has been a resurgence of community gardening over the past decade with a wide range of actors seeking to get involved from health agencies aiming to increase fruit and vegetable consumption to radical social movements searching for symbols of non-capitalist ways of relating and occupying space. Community gardens have become a focal point for local activism in which people are working to contribute to food security, question the erosion of public space, conserve and improve urban environments, develop technologies of sustainable food production, foster community engagement, and create neighbourhood solidarity. Drawing on in-depth case studies and social movement theory, Claire Nettle provides a new empirical and theoretical understanding of community gardening as a site of collective social action. This provides not only a more nuanced and complete understanding of community gardening but also highlights its potential challenges to notions of activism, community, democracy, and culture.

Insurgent Public Space Jeffrey Hou, 2010-04-21 Winner of the EDRA book prize for 2012. In cities around the world, individuals and groups are reclaiming and creating urban sites, temporary spaces, and informal gathering places. These insurgent public spaces challenge conventional views of how urban areas are defined and used and how they can transform the city environment. No longer confined to traditional public areas like neighbourhood parks and public plazas, these guerrilla spaces express the alternative social and spatial relationships in our changing cities. With nearly twenty illustrated case studies, this volume shows how instances of insurgent public space occur across the world. Examples range from community gardening in Seattle and Los Angeles, street dancing in Beijing, to the transformation of parking spaces into temporary parks in San Francisco. Drawing on the experiences and knowledge of individuals extensively engaged in the actual implementation of these spaces, Insurgent Public Space is a unique cross-disciplinary approach to the study of public space use and how it is utilized in the contemporary urban world. Appealing to professionals and students in both urban studies and more social courses, Hou has brought together valuable commentaries on an area of urbanism which has up until now been largely ignored.

The Construction of Property Amnon Lehari, 2013-06-20 Presents a structural and institutional theory of property and examines property regimes, protagonists of property, and the challenges of globalisation.
