examining Bohemia as a key European context for understanding Chaucer's poetry Chaucer never went to Bohemia but Bohemia came to him when in 1382 King Richard II of England married Anne daughter of the Holy Roman Emperor Charles IV Charles's splendid court in Prague was renowned across Europe for its patronage of literature art and architecture and Anne and her entourage brought with them some of its glamour and allure their fashions extravagance and behaviour provoking comment from English chroniclers For Chaucer a poet and diplomat affiliated to Richard's court Anne was more muse than patron her influence embedded in a range of his works including the Parliament of Fowls Troilus and Criseyde the Legend of Good Women and Canterbury Tales This volume shows Bohemia to be a key European context alongside France and Italy for understanding Chaucer's poetry providing a wide perspective on the nature of cultural exchange between England and Bohemia in the later fourteenth century The contributors consider such matters as court culture and politics the writings of Richard Rolle artistic style Troy stories historiographic writing and travel narrative they highlight the debt Chaucer owed to Bohemian culture and the affinities between English and Bohemian literary production whether in the use of Petrarch's tale of Griselda the iconography of the tapster figure or satires on the Passion of Christ

Heroes and Anti-heroes in Medieval Romance Neil Cartlidge, 2012 Investigations into the heroic or not behaviour of the protagonists of medieval romance Medieval romances so insistently celebrate the triumphs of heroes and the discomfiture of villains that they discourage recognition of just how morally ambiguous antisocial or even downright sinister their protagonists can be and correspondingly of just how admirable or impressive their defeated opponents often are This tension between the heroic and the antiheroic makes a major contribution to the dramatic complexity of medieval romance but it is not an aspect of the genre that has been frequently discussed up until now Focusing on fourteen distinct characters and character types in medieval narrative this book illustrates the range of different ways in which the imaginative power and appeal of romance texts often depend on contradictions implicit in the very ideal of heroism Dr Neil Cartlidge is Lecturer in English at the University of Durham Contributors Neil Cartlidge Penny Eley David Ashurst Meg Lamont Laura Ashe Judith Weiss Gareth Griffith Kate McClune Nancy Mason Bradbury Ad Putter Robert Rouse Siobhain Bly Calkin James Wade Stephanie Vierick Gibbs Kamath

The Reputation of Edward II, 1305-1697 Kit Heyam, 2025-10-01 During his lifetime and the four centuries following his death King Edward II 1307-1327 acquired a reputation for having engaged in sexual and romantic relationships with his male favourites and having been murdered by penetration with a red hot spit This book provides the first account of how this reputation developed providing new insights into the processes and priorities that shaped narratives of sexual transgression in medieval and early modern England In doing so it analyses the changing vocabulary of sexual transgression in English Latin and French the conditions that created space for sympathetic depictions of same sex love and the use of medieval history in early modern political polemic It also focuses in particular on the cultural impact of Christopher Marlowe's Edward II c 1591-92 Through such close readings of poetry and drama alongside chronicle accounts and political pamphlets

it demonstrates that Edward's medieval and early modern afterlife was significantly shaped by the influence of literary texts and techniques. A literary transformation of historiographical methodology is it argues an apposite response to the factors that shaped medieval and early modern narratives of the past.

The Lithic Imagination from More to Milton Tiffany Jo Werth, 2024-07-08. The Lithic Imagination from More to Milton explores how stones, rocks and the broader mineral realm play a vital role in early modern England's religious and cultural systems, a role that in turn informs the period's poetic and visual imagination. The scale of the human lifespan and the gyre-like turns of England's long Reformation provide a conceptual framework for the various stony textual and visual archives this book studies. The texts and images participate in specifically English histories: literary, artistic, political, religious, although Continental influences are frequently in dialogue. The religious orbit encompasses the Christian rivalry with Jewish culture, touches on Christianity's tension with Islam, but most intently centers on the antagonism between Catholic and variants of Protestant and Reformed belief. The volume features canonical writers such as Shakespeare, Spenser, Donne, Wroth, Herbert, Milton and Pulteney but puts them in company with lesser-known religious polemicists, alchemists, anatomists, painters, mothers and stonemasons. Accordingly, the multimedia archive includes drama, lyric and prose as well as biblical illustrations, tapestries, church furniture, paintings, anatomical drawings and statues. The lithic too is capaciously construed as a continuum of rocky as well as mineral forms ranging from bodily encrustations like the kidney and bezoar stone to salt, iron, limestone, marble, flint and silicon. The assemblage of materials bears witness to aspirational, imperial fantasies and looming colonial conquests; it engages in both syncretism and supersession, upholds and subverts gender hierarchies, limns the race-making category of hue with desire and supports and sometimes thwarts elitist ideologies of an elect, chosen people. All come together via the storied pathways of stone as densely material and as a foundation for the abstract imaginary along the scala naturae Across the lithic human fold stone promises fascinates betrays As alpha and omega stone can herald salvation or it can threaten with damnation Mandeville's
