Golde,1986-07-28 What is it like to be an anthropologist or more specifically a woman anthropologist Here we see highly trained and qualified women anthropologists examining their own efforts to live and work in alien cultures in many parts of the world New chapters have been added to this ground breaking volume and each contributor is in one way or another a pioneer All have chosen to devote their lives and energies to the understanding of worlds not their own All have felt it important to explain what they do why they do it and how they feel about their work Cultures vary widely in their perception of a woman engaged in anthropological field work Each of these women has had to deal with the influence of her gender as well as the subject of her study on the mechanics of establishing a living working relationship with people of another culture The diversity of their responses to the presence of a foreign woman at work in their midst gives the book an invaluable cross cultural perspective as does the great variety of reactions and strategies on the part of the authors themselves Besides providing rare insight into field work in general Women in the Field mirrors the difficulties and delights of any person thrust into an unfamiliar culture Perspectives on Literacy Eugene R. Kintgen,Barry M. Kroll,Mike Rose,1988 The 28 essays

reprinted here are arranged in four sections that offer theoretical historical educational and community perspectives on the whole topic of literacy In addition to their substantial introduction the editors provide an exhaustive bibliography based on the citations to the essays Kintgen Kroll and Rose see literacy as an extremely complex area of inquiry in which all aspects are interrelated and they hope to avoid creating or perpetuating false boundaries within the field The book s first section contains articles dealing with various psychological and economic consequences of literacy The second provides an introduction to the development of literacy in different eras of the West from its inception among the Greeks to the teaching of it in North America during the past century The third section treats the teaching of literacy in educational institutions primarily at the secondary and post secondary levels The final section discusses literacy outside the traditional classroom the development of literacy among children and adults the functions and uses of literacy in the workplace and elsewhere and the identity and problems of those who have not mastered literacy skills Ethnographic Research in the Social Sciences

Gumperz, 1982 Throughout Western society there are now strong pressures for social and racial integration but in spite of these recent experience has shown that greater intergroup contact can actually reinforce social distinctions and ethnic stereotypes The studies collected here examine from a broad sociological perspective the sorts of face to face verbal exchange that are characteristic of industrial societies and the volume as a whole pointedly demonstrates the role played by communicative phenomena in establishing and reinforcing social identity The method of analysis that has been adopted enables the authors to reveal and examine a centrally important but hitherto little discussed conversational mechanism the subconscious processes of inference that result from situational factors social presuppositions and discourse conventions The theory of conversation and the method of analysis that inform the author s approach are discussed in the first two chapters and the case studies themselves examine interviews counselling sessions and similar formal exchanges involving contacts between a wide range of different speakers South Asians West Indians and native English speakers in Britain English natives and Chinese in South East Asia Afro Americans Asians and native English speakers in the United States and English and

French speakers in Canada The volume will be of importance to linguists anthropologists psychologists and others with a professional interest in communication and its findings will have far reaching applications in industrial and community relations and in educational practice
