that human existence depended on natural forces that would never submit to rational control Reading the Enlightenment through the ideas beliefs and practices concerning the weather Jan Golinski aims to reshape our understanding of the movement and its legacy for modern environmental thinking With its combination of cultural history and the history of science British Weather and the Climate of Enlightenment counters the claim that Enlightenment progress set humans against nature instead revealing that intellectuals of the age drew characteristically modern conclusions about the inextricability of nature and culture Antique Scientific Instruments Gerard L'Estrange Turner,1980 Directory of British Scientific Instrument Makers, 1550-1851 Gloria Clifton,1995 This publication lists over 5 000 scientific instrument makers and retailers working in the British Isles together with a further 10 000 names of apprentices and associates The directory transforms our understanding of the history of the scientific instrument making trades in Britain Each entry includes estimated working dates specific trades addresses training apprentices types of instruments made and brief biographical details As such this volume not only provides essential information for collectors dealers museum curators and scholars but it will also have much to offer economic social and family historians with its evidence about master apprentice links trade connections and family relationships Magill's Survey of Science Frank Northen Magill,Donald R.
