5 Cross-linguistic Influence in Third Language Acquisition Jasone Cenoz,Britta Hufeisen,Ulrike Jessner,2001-01-01 Third language acquisition is a common phenomenon which presents some specific characteristics as compared to second language acquisition This volume adopts a psycholinguistic approach in the study of cross linguistic influence in third language acquisition and focuses on the role of previously acquired languages and the conditions that determine their influence

Languages, scripts, and Chinese texts in East Asia Peter Francis Kornicki,2018-01-19 Chinese Writing and the Rise of the Vernacular in East Asia is a wide ranging study of vernacularization in East Asia not only China Japan Korea and Vietnam but also societies that no longer exist such as the Tangut and Khitan empires Peter Kornicki takes the reader from the early centuries of the common era when the Chinese script was the only form of writing and Chinese Buddhist Confucian and medical texts spread throughout East Asia through the centuries when vernacular scripts evolved right up to the end of the nineteenth century when nationalism created new roles for vernacular languages and vernacular scripts Through an examination of oral approaches to Chinese texts it shows how highly valued Chinese texts came to be read through the prism of the vernaculars and ultimately to be translated This long process has some parallels with vernacularization in Europe but a crucial difference is that literary Chinese was unlike Latin not a spoken language As a consequence people who spoke different East Asian vernaculars had no means of communicating in speech but they could communicate silently by means of written conversation in literary Chinese a further consequence is that within each society Chinese texts assumed vernacular garb in classes and lectures Chinese texts were read and declaimed in the vernaculars What happened in the nineteenth century and why are there still so many different scripts in East Asia How and why were Chinese texts dethroned and what replaced them These are some of the questions addressed in Chinese Writing and the Rise of the Vernacular in East Asia

Hannas,2013-03-26 Students in Japan China and Korea are among the world s top performers on standardized math and science tests The nations of East Asia are also leading manufacturers of consumer goods that incorporate scientific breakthroughs in telecommunications optics and transportation Yet there is a startling phenomenon known throughout Asia as the creativity problem While East Asians are able to use science they have not demonstrated the ability to invent radically new systems and paradigms that lead to new technologies In fact the legal and illegal transfer of technology from the West to the East is one of the most contentious international business issues Yet Asians who study and work in the West and depend upon Western languages for their research are among the most creative and talented scientists no less so than their Western counterparts William C Hannas contends that this paradox emerges from the nature of East Asian writing systems which are character based rather than alphabetic Character based orthographies according to the author lack the abstract features of alphabetic writing that model the thought processes necessary for scientific creativity When first learning to read children who are immersed in a character based culture are at a huge disadvantage because such writing systems do not cultivate the ability for abstract thought Despite the overwhelming body of evidence that points to the cognitive side effects the cultural importance of character based writing makes the adoption of an alphabet unlikely in the near future International Books in Print ,1986
