The volume critically examines the ways in which animals have come to be framed as epidemic villains since the turn of the nineteenth century. Providing epistemological and social histories of non-human epidemic blame as well as ethnographic perspectives on its recent manifestations, the essays explore this cornerstone of modern epidemiology and public health alongside its continuing importance in today's world. Covering diverse regions, the book argues that framing animals as spreaders and reservoirs of infectious diseases from plague to rabies to Ebola is an integral aspect not only to scientific breakthroughs but also to the ideological and biopolitical apparatus of modern medicine. As the first book to consider the impact of the image of non-human disease hosts and vectors on medicine and public health, it offers a major contribution to our understanding of human-animal interaction under the shadow of global epidemic threat. Emerging Infectious Diseases, 2007-07 The Water Birds of North America Spencer Fullerton Baird, Thomas Mayo Brewer, Robert Ridgway, 1884 Vietnam Ian Jeffries, 2007-01-24 Tracing developments since the end of the Vietnam War, Ian Jeffries gives a comprehensive and informative overview of the current political and economic situation in Vietnam today. Hong Kong as a Global Metropolis David R. Meyer, 2000-05-04 Hong Kong has remained the global metropolis for Asia since its founding in the 1840s following the Opium Wars between Britain and China. David Meyer traces its vibrant history from the arrival of the foreign trading firms when it was established as one of the leading Asian business centres to its celebrated handover to China in 1997. Throughout this period, Hong Kong has been prominent as a pivotal meeting place of the Chinese and foreign social networks of capital and as such has been China's window on to the world economy, dominating other financial centres such as Singapore and Tokyo. Looking into the future, the author presents an optimistic view of Hong Kong in the twenty-first century, challenging those who predict its decline under Chinese rule. This accessible and broad-ranging look at the story of Hong Kong's success will interest anyone concerned with its past, present, and future. Anthropogenic Tropical Forests Noboru Ishikawa, Ryoji Soda, 2019-11-06

The studies in this volume provide an ethnography of a plantation frontier in central Sarawak Malaysian Borneo Drawing on the expertise of both natural scientists and social scientists the key focus is the process of commodification of nature that has turned the local landscape into anthropogenic tropical forests Analysing the transformation of the space of mixed landscapes and multiethnic communities driven by trade in forest products logging and the cultivation of oil palm the contributors explore the changing nature of the environment multispecies interactions and the metabolism between capitalism and nature The project involved the collaboration of researchers specialising in anthropology geography Southeast Asian history global history area studies political ecology environmental economics plant ecology animal ecology forest ecology hydrology ichthyology geomorphology and life cycle assessment Collectively the transdisciplinary research addresses a number of vital questions How are material cycles and food webs altered as a result of large scale land use change How have new commodity chains emerged while older ones have disappeared What changes are associated with such shifts What are the relationships among these three elements commodity chains material cycles and food webs Attempts to answer these questions led the team to go beyond the dichotomy of society and nature as well as human and non human Rather the research highlights complex relational entanglements of the two worlds abruptly and forcibly connected by human induced changes in an emergent and compelling resource frontier in maritime Southeast Asia Chapters Commodification of Nature on the Plantation Frontier and Into a New Epoch The Plantationocene are available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution NonCommercial NoDerivatives 4.0 International License via link.springer.com
