Martin,1995 The apparent decline in numbers among many species of migratory songbirds is a timely subject in conservation biology particularly for ornithologists ecologists and wildlife managers This book presents a full discussion of the problem General Technical Report RMRS ,1998

Continental Divide/Wamsutter II Natural Gas Project ,1999 The Iowa Breeding Bird Atlas Laura Spess Jackson,Carol A. Thompson,James J. Dinsmore,1996 The Iowa Breeding Bird Atlas the first comprehensive statewide survey of Iowa s breeding birds provides a detailed record of the composition and distribution of the avifauna of the Hawkeye State The atlas documents the presence of 199 species 158 of which were confirmed breeding This landmark volume will alert Iowans to the limited distribution of numerous species and serve as a guide to the management practices such as forest and wetland management set aside programs reduction in farm chemical use and crop diversity which could help insure that many future changes are positive ones The Iowa Breeding Bird Atlas provides a welcome and much needed baseline for future comparisons of changes in Iowa s birdlife and by extension the lives of all animals in the state Ecology and Conservation of the Cactus Ferruginous Pygmy-owl in Arizona ,2000 This report is the result of a cooperative effort by the Rocky Mountain Research Station and the USDA Forest Service Region 3 with participation by the Arizona Game and Fish Department and the Bureau of Land Management It assesses the state of knowledge related to the conservation status of the cactus ferruginous pygmy owl in Arizona The population decline of this owl has been attributed to the loss of riparian areas before and after the turn of the 20th century Currently the cactus ferruginous pygmy owl is chiefly found in southern Arizona in xeroriparian vegetation and wellstructured upland desertscrub The primary threat to the remaining pygmy owl population appears to be continued habitat loss due to residential development Important information gaps exist and prevent a full understanding of the current population status of the owl and its conservation needs Neotropical Migratory Birds Richard DeGraaf,John Rappole,2019-06-07 Thrushes warblers vireos and tanagers are probably the most familiar of the Neotropical migrants birds that breed in the United States and Canada then journey to spend the winter in the Caribbean Mexico or southward But this extraordinary group actually comprises a large number of diverse species including waterfowl shorebirds terns hawks flycatchers and hummingbirds In their compendious review of information on these birds Richard M DeGraaf and John H Rappole illuminate the need for a thorough understanding of the ecology of each species one that extends throughout the entire life cycle The authors argue convincingly that conservation efforts must be based on such an understanding and carried out across a species range not limited to the breeding grounds This book is the first to summarize

in one volume much needed practical data about the distribution and breeding habitat requirements of migratory birds in North and South America The body of the book consists of natural history accounts of more than 350 species of Neotropical migrants including a brief description of each bird s range status habitats on breeding grounds nest site and wintering areas The authors provide a complete range map of each species distribution in the Western Hemisphere as well as notes on the distribution basic data that until recently have largely been unavailable in usable form to ornithologists and land and resource managers An appendix lists species that are increasing or decreasing at significant rates in various physiographic regions of North America Wildlife Abstracts ,1957 Handbook of Field Methods for Monitoring Landbirds C. John Ralph,1999-03 Presents a compilation of methods that can be used to assay population size demographics status of virtually all species of landbirds in a wide variety of habitats Suggests priorities for selecting a monitoring method determining station location Presents general tasks that determine which species can be monitored methods of establishing maintaining a study plot journal keeping training of personnel Describes two demographic methods four types of censuses for determining population size trends Methods are suggested for measuring habitat recording weather color banding Illustrated General Technical Report SE ,1995 Draft Environmental Statement Relating to the Operation and Maintenance of a Nine-foot Channel in the Illinois Waterway from the Junction of the Calumet-Sag Channel and the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal to the LaGrange Lock and Dam United States.
