Proceedings of the Symposium on Management of Forest and Range Habitats for Nongame Birds, May 6-9, 1975, Tucson, Arizona, 1975 State of the Birds 2011: Report on Public Lands and Waters: United States of America, Neotropical Migratory Birds of the Kisatchie National Forest, Louisiana Robert X. Barry, 1995 Restoring North America's Birds Robert A. Askins, 2008-10-01 DIVThe decline of bird species in a wide range of North American habitats forests prairies shrublands mountain regions marshes and deserts has inspired two decades of intense scientific study of bird ecology and conservation But for professional scientists and amateur birders alike interpreting the results of these diverse studies is often complex and bewildering This accessible book pulls together recent research on bird species and habitats to show how basic ecological principles apply in seemingly different situations Robert A Askins provides an engaging introduction to bird ecology and concepts of landscape ecology focusing on such intriguing species as Bachman's Warbler Red Crossbill Mountain Plover and Marbled Murrelet Understanding the ancient landscapes of North America and how humans have changed them Askins says is essential for devising plans to protect and restore bird populations In addition to such obvious changes to the landscape as the clearing of forests and plowing of prairies more subtle changes also dramatically affect birds Species may disappear when we interrupt natural disturbances by suppressing wildfires or trapping out beaver or when we disrupt habitat with roads and housing developments Askins challenges some of the assumptions that underlie current conservation efforts and offers concrete recommendations based on sound ecological principles for protecting the rich natural diversity of North America's birds USDA Forest Service General Technical Report WO-170. Wisconsin Birdlife Samuel D. Robbins, 1991 As initially planned in 1939 by Owen J. Gromme then curator of birds at the Milwaukee Public Museum Wisconsin Birdlife would not only describe and document every species of bird known to have visited this state but would also depict each species with his own original paintings During the next two decades Gromme concentrated primarily on the latter resulting in the separate publication in 1963 of his now classic Birds of Wisconsin Work on the present volume was assumed in the late 1960s by Samuel D. Robbins whose labors of more than 20 years give us a veritable encyclopedia of the state's ornithological knowledge A complement and supplement to field guides picture books and recordings the book is designed to enlarge the reader's understanding and appreciation of statewide history abundance and habitat preference of every species reliably recorded in Wisconsin The volume opens with a summary of the ornithological history of the state and an exposition of its ecological setting The heart of Wisconsin Birdlife ensues detailed accounts of nearly 400 species with information on status population and distribution habitat migration dates breeding data and wintering presence followed by extensive discussion and commentary Dr. James Hall Zimmerman Senior Lecturer in Landscape Architecture at the University of Wisconsin-Madison provides a special discussion of bird habitats for the book In addition Wisconsin Birdlife features a comprehensive status and seasonal distribution chart a detailed habitat preference chart and an exhaustive bibliography The ultimate resource Wisconsin Birdlife belongs within easy reach of everyone from armchair appreciators and casual birdwatchers to ardent birders and professional ornithologists Proceedings of the Workshop Management of Southern Forests for Nongame Birds, January 24-26, 1978, Atlanta, Georgia, 1978 Landscape Boundaries Andrew J. Hansen, Francesco DiCasteri, 2012-12-06 The emergence of landscape ecology during the 1980s represents an important maturation of ecological theory Once enamored with the conceptual beauty of well-balanced homogeneous ecosystems ecologists now assert that much of the essence of ecological systems lies in their lumpiness Patches with differing properties and behaviors lie strewn across the landscape products of the complex interactions of climate disturbance and biotic processes It is the collective behavior of this patchwork of ecosystems that drives pattern and process of the landscape is not an end point This realization of the importance of patch dynamics in itself however Rather it is a passage to a new conceptual framework the internal workings of which remain obscure The next tier of questions includes What are the fundamental pieces that compose a landscape How are these pieces bounded To what extent do these boundaries influence communication and interaction among patches of the landscape Will consideration of the interactions among landscape elements help us to understand the workings of landscapes. At the core of these questions lies the notion of the ecotone, a term with a lineage that even predates ecosystem. Late in the nineteenth century F. E. Clements realized that the transition zones between plant communities had properties distinct from either of the adjacent communities. Not until the emergence of patch dynamics theory, however, has the central significance of the ecotone concept become apparent.

Frugivores and seed dispersal Alejandro Estrada, T. H. Fleming, 2012-12-06. A wide variety of plants ranging in size from forest floor herbs to giant canopy trees rely on animals to disperse their seeds. Typical values of the proportion of tropical vascular plants that produce fleshy fruits and have animal-dispersed seeds range from 50–90% depending on habitat. In this section the authors discuss this mutualism from the plant's perspective. Herrera begins by challenging the notion that plant traits traditionally interpreted as being the product of fruit-frugivore coevolution really are the outcome of a response-counter response kind of evolutionary process. He uses examples of congeneric plants living in very different biotic and abiotic environments and whose fossilizable characteristics have not changed over long periods of time to argue that there exists little or no basis for assuming that gradualistic change and environmental tracking characterizes the interactions between plants and their vertebrate seed dispersers. A common theme that runs through the papers by Herrera, Denslow et al. and Stiles and White is the importance of the fruiting environment, i.e. the spatial relationships of conspecific and non-conspecific fruiting plants on rates of fruit removal and patterns of seed rain. Herrera and Denslow et al. point out that this environment is largely outside the control of individual plant species and as a result, closely coevolved interactions between vertebrates and plants are unlikely to evolve.
