Gender and Food Marcia Texler Segal, Vasilikie (Vicky) Demos, 2016-09-02 Volume 22 explores the complex relationships between gender and food in a variety of locations and time periods using a range of research methods Gender inequality as it affects the struggle for access to land the affordability of food and its nutritional value is identified as a major social policy issue

Edible Ideologies Kathleen LeBesco, Peter Naccarato, 2012-08-13 Edible Ideologies argues that representations of food in literature and popular fiction cookbooks and travel guides war propaganda women's magazines television and print advertisements are not just about nourishment or pleasure Contributors explore how these various modes of representation reflecting prevailing attitudes and assumptions about food and food practices function instead to circulate and transgress dominant cultural ideologies Addressing questions concerning whose interests are served by a particular food practice or habit and what political ends are fulfilled by the historical changes that lead from one practice to another in Western culture the essays offer a rich historical narrative that moves from the construction of the nineteenth century English gentleman to the creation of two of today's iconic figures in food culture Julia Child and Martha Stewart Along the way readers will encounter World War I propaganda holocaust and Sephardic cookbooks the Rosenbergs German tour guides fast food advertising food packaging and chocolate and will find food for thought on the meanings of everything from camembert to Velveeta from salads to burgers and from tikka masala to Campbell's soup

Food Parcels in International Migration Diana Mata-Codesal, Maria Abranches, 2017-08-09 This book takes food parcels as a vehicle for exploring relationships intimacy care consumption exchange and other fundamental anthropological concerns examining them in relation to wider transnational spaces As the contributors to this volume argue food and its related practices offer a window through which to examine the reconciliation of people's localised intimate experiences with globalising forces Their analyses contribute to an embodied and sensorial approach to social change by examining migrants and their families experiences of global connectedness through familiar objects and narratives By bringing in in depth ethnographic insights from different social and economic contexts this book widens the understanding of the lived experiences of mobility and goes beyond the divide between origin and destination countries therefore contributing to new ways of thinking about migration and transnationalism that take into consideration the materiality of global connections and the way such connections are embodied and experienced at the local level

The Still Life in the Fiction of A. S. Byatt Elizabeth Hicks, 2010-08-11
 This book explores the ways in which English writer A. S. Byatt's visual still life descriptions of real or imagined artworks and what are termed verbal still life scenes such as laid tables, rooms and market stalls are informed by her veneration of both realism and writing. It examines Byatt's adoption of the Barthesian concept of textual pleasure showing how her ekphrastic descriptions involve consumption and take time to unfold for the reader, thereby highlighting the limitations of painting. It also investigates the ways in which Byatt's still life demonstrations demonstrate her debts to English modernist author Virginia Woolf, French writer Marcel Proust and the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood of nineteenth century Britain. A number of Byatt's verbal still life descriptions are read as semiotic markers of her characters, particularly with regard to economic status and class. Further, her descriptions uniting food and sexuality are perceived as part of her overall representation of pleasure. Finally, Byatt's employment of vanitas iconography in many of her portrayals of death is discussed, showing how her recurring motif of Keats's Ode on a Grecian Urn teases out the still life's inherent tension between living passion and cold artwork.

Baking as Biography Diane Tye, 2010-08-10

The Oxford Handbook of Women and Competition Maryanne Fisher, 2017
 The Oxford Handbook of Women and Competition is one of the first scholarly volumes to focus specifically on competition and the competitive forces between women. Chapters provide readers with a definitive view of the current state of research and collectively address the adaptive and socio-cultural foundations of women's competitive behavior, motivations and cognitions.

Food, Faith and Gender in South Asia Nita Kumar, Usha Sanyal, 2020-02-20
 How do women express individual agency when engaging in seemingly prescribed or approved practices such as religious fasting? How are sectarian identities played out in the performance of food piety? What do food practices tell us about how women negotiate changes in family relationships? This collection offers a variety of distinct perspectives on these questions. Organized thematically, areas explored include the subordination of women, the nature of resistance, boundary making and the construction of identity and community. Methodologically, the essays use imaginative reconstructions of women's experiences, particularly where the only accounts available are written by men. The essays focus on Hindus and Muslims in South Asia, Sri Lankan Buddhist women and South Asians in the diaspora in the US and UK. Pioneering new research into food and gender roles in South Asia, this will be of use to students of food studies, sociology, anthropology and cultural studies.

Food, Masculinities, and Home Michelle Szabo, Shelley Koch, Rosie Cox, 2017-05-18
 Long-held assumptions about women, home, food and cooking have broken down. In an increasing number of households, women are either absent from or share domestic work more equally with men. At the same time, the visibility of men's cooking has increased through TV shows, books, blogs and websites devoted to food and cooking. Terms like gastrosexual have emerged to describe the growing male market for kitchenware and the growing prestige of public masculine foodwork. Whilst scholars have begun to examine how men's increasing engagement with homemaking practices shapes masculine identities and transforms meanings of home. Food Masculinities and Home is the first book to focus specifically on food. An international multidisciplinary range of contributors explores questions such as: How do food practices shape masculinities and notions of home and vice versa? To what extent are existing gender hierarchies being challenged? To what extent is masculine privilege being reiterated? To what extent are masculinities being reshaped by the increasing presence of men in kitchens and food focused spaces? With ever growing interest in both food and gender studies this is a must read for students and researchers in food studies, gender studies, cultural studies, sociology, geography, anthropology and related fields. Look Who's Cooking Jennifer Rachel Dutch, 2018-08-03. Home cooking is a multibillion dollar industry that includes cookbooks, kitchen gadgets, high end appliances, specialty ingredients and more. Cooking themed programming flourishes on television inspiring a wide array of celebrity chef branded goods even as self described foodies seek authenticity by pickling, preserving and canning foods in their own home kitchens. Despite this, claims that no one has time to cook anymore are common lamenting the slow extinction of traditional American home cooking in the twenty first century. In Look Who's Cooking: The Rhetoric of American Home Cooking Traditions in the Twenty First Century author Jennifer Rachel Dutch explores the death of home cooking narrative revealing how modern changes transformed cooking at home from an odious chore into a concept imbued with deep meanings associated with home, family and community. Drawing on a wide array of texts, cookbooks, advertising, YouTube videos and more, Dutch analyzes the many manifestations of traditional cooking in America today. She argues that what is missing from the discourse around home cooking is an understanding of skills and recipes as a form of folklore. Dutch's research reveals that home cooking is a powerful vessel that Americans fill with meaning because it represents both the continuity of the past and adaptability to the present. Home cooking is about much more than what is for dinner; it's about forging a connection to the past, displaying the self in the present and leaving a lasting legacy for the future. Journal of Women's History, 2004. The Folktales of Palestine Farah Aboubakr, 2019-03-21. Folktales are instrumental in ensuring the survival of oral traditions and strengthening communal bonds. Both the stories and the process of storytelling itself help to define social, cultural and political identity. For Palestinians, the threat of losing their heritage has engendered a sense of urgency among storytellers and Palestinian folklorists. Yet there has been remarkably little academic scholarship dedicated to the tradition. Farah Aboubakr here analyses a selection of folktales edited, compiled and translated by Ibrahim Muhawi and Sharif Kanaana in Speak, Bird, Speak Again 1989. In addition to the folktales themselves, Muhawi and Kanaana's collection is renowned for providing readers with extensive folkloric, historical and anthropological annotations. Here for the first time, the folktales and the compilers' work on them are the subject of scholarly analysis. Synthesising various disciplines including memory studies, gender studies and social movement studies, Aboubakr uses the collection to understand the politics of storytelling and its impact on Palestinian identity In particular the book draws attention to the female storytellers who play an essential role in transmitting and preserving collective memory and culture The book is an important step towards analysing a significant genre of Palestinian literature and will be relevant to scholars of Palestinian politics and popular culture gender studies and memory studies and those interested in folklore and oral literature The Publishers Weekly,2001 New Books on Women and Feminism ,2001
