BLACK CALIFORNIA

The History of African-Americans
in the Golden State

B. Gordon Wheeler

The "fire and thunder" of the April 29, 1992, "uprising" in South-Central Los Angeles was retaliation against racial injustice. It resulted in 58 dead, 2,400 injured, 11,700 arrested, and $717 million in damages — and the resignation of Police Chief Daryl Gates. Minority leaders blamed the city and country for rigging justice against African-Americans. "African-Americans see themselves as being pushed out of the system, dehumanized," says Diane Watson.

The African-American helped make California what it was and what it is. Since the founding of Mission San Diego de Alcalá on July 16, 1769, men and women of color have been an important factor in many of the major issues in the state's history. However, the role of black people in the making of the Golden State is not well known. BLACK CALIFORNIA puts African-American history in its proper perspective in the Golden State, illuminating a vital facet of California state history.
