Asian Orientations:

Handbook of Asian American Health Grace J. Yoo, Mai-Nhung Le, Alan Y. Oda, 2012-10-12 Asian Americans encounter a range of health issues often unknown to the American public policy makers researchers and even clinicians National research often combines Asian Americans into a single category not taking into account the differences and complexity among Asian ethnic subgroups The definition of Asian American derives from the U S Census Bureau's definition of Asian which includes peoples from all the vast territories of the Far East Southeast Asia and the South Asian Subcontinent While Census classifications determine demographic measurements that affect equal opportunity programs the broad rubric Asian American can never describe accurately the more than 50 distinct Asian American subgroups who together comprise multifaceted diversity across cultural ethnicities socio economic status languages religions and generations This volume rectifies that situation by exploring the unique needs and health concerns of particular subgroups within the Asian American community It consolidates a wide range of knowledge on various health issues impacting Asian Americans while also providing a discussion into the cultural social and structural forces impacting morbidity mortality and quality of life The volume is designed to advance the understanding of Asian American health by explaining key challenges and identifying emerging trends faced in specific ethnic groups and diseases illnesses innovative community based interventions and the future needed areas of research

The Politics of Asian Americans Pei-te Lien, M. Margaret Conway, Janelle Wong, 2004-06 Through the perspectives of mass politics this book challenges popular misconceptions about Asian Americans as politically apathetic disloyal fragmented unsophisticated and inscrutable by showcasing results of the 2000 01 Multi City Asian American Political Survey

Journal of Asian Pacific Communication Giles/Pierson, Howard Giles, 1990-01-04 Research into language issues and communication problems is investigated across a range of disciplines and appears in a wide diversity of published outlets In addition any linguistic and communication problems faced by Southeast Asian immigrants elsewhere in the world are also located in disparate contexts This journal is the first real attempt to provide a forum for such widespread concerns to be published in the English Language

Citizens, Democracy, and Markets Around the Pacific Rim Russell J. Dalton, To-ch'öl Sin, 2006-11-02 East Asia is one of the most dynamic areas of political change in the world today what role do citizens play in these processes of change Drawing upon a unique set of coordinated public opinion surveys conducted by the World Values Survey this book provides a dramatically new image of the political cultures of East Asia Most East Asian citizens have strong democratic aspirations even in still autocratic nations Most East Asians support liberal market reforms even in nations where state socialism has been dominant The book's findings thus provide a new perspective on the political values of Asian publics We demonstrate that the dramatic socioeconomic changes of the past several decades have transformed public opinion altering many of the social norms traditionally identified with Asian values and creating public support for further political and economic modernization of the region Political culture in East Asia is not an impediment to change but creates the potential for even greater democratization and marketization Comparative Politics is a series for students and teachers of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics The General Editors are Max Kaase Professor of Political Science Vice President and Dean School of Humanities and Social Science International University Bremen Germany and Kenneth Newton Professor of Comparative Politics University of Southampton The series is produced in association with the European Consortium for Political Research Applied Language Learning,2010 Globalization and Development in East Asia Jan Nederveen Pieterse,Jongtae Kim,2012-08-06 East Asia is widely regarded as the main winner in contemporary globalization unscathed by the economic crisis of 2008 with its leading new industrializing nations and emerging economies While 20th century globalization was mainly led by the West the 21st century is ushering in different dynamics The re emergence of Asia involves alternative visions of the world and different perspectives on globalization This volume seeks to address these dimensions turning to local reflexivities notably in South Korea and China to explore the key debates in sociology and political economy within East Asia rather than from an outside view International Handbook of Globalization and World Cities Ben Derudder,2012-02-01 This Handbook offers an unrivalled overview of current research into how globalization is affecting the external relations and internal structures of major cities in the world By treating cities at a global scale it focuses on the stretching of urban functions beyond specific place locations without losing sight of the multiple divisions in contemporary world cities The book firmly bases city networks in their historical context critically discusses contemporary concepts and key empirical measures and analyses major issues relating to world city infrastructures economies governance and divisions The variety of urban outcomes in contemporary globalization is explored through detailed case studies Edited by leading scholars of the Globalization and World Cities GaWC Research Network and written by over 60 experts in the field the Handbook is a unique resource for students researchers and academics in urban and globalization studies as well as for city professionals in planning and policy Asian Pacific Catholicism and Globalization José Casanova,Peter C. Phan,2023 This book argues that the development of Catholicism in Asia was closely connected with globalization Since the 16th century Catholicism has contributed significantly to global connectivity while at the same time the Church's global expansion has transformed the Church's own global consciousness Casanova and Phan adopt a framework of three distinct phases of the development of Catholicism in Asia and Oceania early modern 16th to 18th centuries modern Western hegemony 1780s to the 1960s and the contemporary after Western hegemony With this framework contributors discuss the development of Catholicism in all major countries of the region including China Japan Korea the Philippines Vietnam India and Australia Except for the Philippines and Timor Leste Catholicism in Asia is and is likely to remain a minority religion for the foreseeable future For that reason however it can serve as a unique prism through which to look at the processes of globalization in Asia precisely because the historical processes through which Catholicism took roots in the entire region and became inculturated as an Asian religion are so
