Shortlisted for the Readings Prize for New Australian Fiction in 2019 The Flight of Birds is a novel in twelve stories each of them compelled by an encounter between the human and animal worlds The birds in these stories inhabit the same space as humans but they are also apart gliding above us The Flight of Birds A Novel in Twelve Stories explores what happens when the two worlds meet Joshua Lobb's stories are at once intimate and expansive grounded in an exquisite sense of place The birds in these stories are variously free and wild native and exotic friendly and hostile Humans see some of them as pets some of them as pests and some of them as food Through a series of encounters between birds and humans the book unfolds as a meditation on grief and loss isolation and depression and the momentary connections that sustain us through them Underpinning these interactions is an awareness of climate change of the violence we do to the living beings around us and of the possibility of transformation The Flight of Birds will change how you think about the planet and humanity's place in it

Etruscan Roman Remains in Popular Tradition Charles Godfrey Leland, 1892-01-01 THERE is in Northern Italy a mountain district known as La Romagna Toscana the inhabitants of which speak a rude form of the Bolognese dialect These Romagnoli are manifestly a very ancient race and appear to have preserved traditions and observances little changed from an incredibly early time It has been a question of late years whether the Bolognese are of Etrurian origin and it seems to have been generally decided that they are not With this I have nothing whatever to do They were probably there before the Etruscans But the latter at one time held all Italy and it is very likely that they left in remote districts those traces of their culture to which this book refers The name Romagna is applied to their district because it once formed part of the Papal or Roman dominion and it is not to be confounded with La Romagna proper Roughly speaking the region to which I refer may be described as lying between Forlì and Ravenna Among these people stregeria or witchcraft or as I have heard it called la vecchia religione or the old religion exists to a degree which would even astonish many Italians This stregeria or old religion is something more than a sorcery and something less than a faith It consists in remains of a mythology of spirits the principal of whom preserve the names and attributes of the old Etruscan gods such as Tinia or Jupiter Faflon or Bacchus and Teramo in Etruscan Turms or Mercury With these there still exist in a few memories the most ancient Roman rural deities such as Silvanus Palus Pan and the Fauns To all of these invocations or prayers in rude metrical form are still addressed or are at least preserved and there are many stories current regarding them All of these names with their attributes descriptions of spirits or gods invocations and legends will be found in this work      The Church of England magazine [afterw.] The
