Methodological Issues in Consciousness Research, volume II Axel Cleeremans, 2025-04-16 This Research Topic is the second volume of the Research Topic Methodological Issues in Consciousness Research Please see the first volume here The simplest and perhaps the first notion of consciousness in the West as a sentience or awareness of internal or external existence was introduced in the Seventeenth century by the English physician Robert Fludd though similar and even more refined notions of consciousness were developed centuries before in Indian philosophy and contemplative wisdom traditions Because it permeates human existence in so many different ways the study of consciousness is a profoundly interdisciplinary endeavour and engages disciplines such as philosophy including Eastern philosophy cognitive neuroscience anthropology psychiatry and psychopathology and even physics The study of consciousness may involve domains as diverse as perceptual awareness cognition and metacognition reasoning executive control theory of mind self sleep and dreaming emotional competence and empathy It concerns both healthy e g aging meditation spiritual experiences and pathological conditions e g epilepsy neglect and locked in syndromes minimally conscious states anesthesia and involves considerations operating at different time scales e g evolution development expertise Today however and despite almost thirty years of concerted interdisciplinary efforts the nature and mechanisms of consciousness remain as elusive as ever Theoretically different conceptual frameworks aimed at characterizing both its functional and phenomenal aspects take sometimes radically different assumptions as their starting point but often fail to make sufficiently precise differential predictions to be falsifiable While most recent views generally consider methods investigating human higher order reflective or access consciousness the theoretical and experimental foundations of primary proto consciousness often remain vague and ignore evolutionary considerations Influential distinctions such as the distinction between phenomenal and access consciousness between pre reflective minimal and the reflective narrative self between graded and all or none processing or even between conscious and unconscious processing all remain unsettled or controversial The field is also rife with methodological challenges and controversies some of which remain largely unsolved Questions such as how to best measure awareness or to how establish its absence issues such as what kind of neuroscientific data would convincingly make it possible to isolate the neural correlates of consciousness or what types of confounds contaminate extant findings challenges such as how to imagine crucial experiments that are sufficiently sensitive to falsify some theoretical proposals all need to be addressed in open interdisciplinary dialogue This Frontiers Research Topic is aimed at stimulating discussion about current methodological issues and trends in consciousness research We welcome theoretical and empirical contributions as well as empirical articles from both experts and young scientists who work in the field of consciousness research Submissions of related hypotheses original research articles case reports perspectives reviews opinions and commentaries are welcome We very much hope that this Frontiers Research Topic will contribute to enhancing our characterization and understanding of the methodological and conceptual challenges associated with the study of human consciousness

Disorders of Consciousness, An Issue of Neurologic Clinics G. Bryan Young, 2011-05-28 This issue of Neurologic Clinics addresses the cognitive impact of various forms of brain injury

Behavioural Methods in Consciousness Research Morten Overgaard, 2015 Behavioural methods in consciousness research is the first book of its kind providing an overview of methods and approaches for studying consciousness The chapters are written by leading researchers and experts who describe the methods they actually use in their own studies along with their pitfalls problems and difficulties

Brain States and Neural Mechanisms of Consciousness Olivia Gosseries, 2022-09-30

Conscious in a Vegetative State? A Critique of the PVS Concept Peter McCullagh, 2006-01-17 Having been originally introduced as a term to facilitate discussion of a specific group of patients regarded as entering a state of unawareness following coma the Persistent Vegetative State PVS has established itself as an apparently discrete medical condition with clear cut implications for ethicists and lawyers that exceed any scientifically based understanding As a consequence of this upgrading conclusions drawn about the status and hence the management of this uncommon condition have been increasingly extended to other patients with much more common forms of disability This book traces the origins of prevailing perceptions about PVS and submits these to critical examination In doing this it comes to the conclusion that inadequate attention has been paid to acknowledging what is not known about affected individuals and that assumptions have consistently come to be traded as facts Re examination of the basis of the PVS and the adoption of a more scientific approach is long overdue and is owed to the community at large which has generally been provided by many medical practitioners with a dumbed down account of the condition The book will be of interest to philosophers medical graduates and neuroscientists but is also intended to remain accessible to the general reader with an interest in the wider implications of trends in medical thinking for attitudes towards many classes of patient It has an extensive bibliography and will be of specific interest to bioethicists and lawyers with professional interests in PVS Ethical Issues in Neurology James L. Bernat, 2008 Written by an eminent authority from the American Academy of Neurology's Committee on Ethics Law and Humanities this book is an excellent text for all clinicians interested in ethical decision making The book features outstanding presentations on dying and palliative care physician assisted suicide and voluntary active euthanasia medical futility and the relationship between ethics and the law New chapters in this edition discuss how clinicians resolve ethical dilemmas in practice and explore ethical issues in neuroscience research Other highlights include updated material on palliative sedation advance directives ICU withdrawal of life sustaining therapy gene therapy the very low birth weight premature infant the developmentally disabled patient informed consent organizational ethics brain death controversies and fMRI and PET studies relating to persistent vegetative state

Conscious Experience Thomas Metzinger, 1995 The contributions to this book are original articles representing a cross section of current philosophical work on consciousness and thereby allowing students and readers from other disciplines to acquaint themselves with the very latest debate so that they can then pursue their own research interests more effectively The volume includes a bibliography on consciousness in philosophy cognitive science and brain research covering the last 25 years and consisting of over 1000 entries in 18 thematic sections compiled by David Chalmers and Thomas Metzinger

Mild Altered States of Consciousness Eileen Sheppard, 2024-04-17 This book draws on transpersonal anthropology and psychology in order to explore mild altered states of consciousness ASCs experienced in everyday life While research into consciousness and particularly ASCs is growing this book focuses on a neglected area everyday experiences of ASCs Opening with an up to date overview of the development of the study of ASCs the author presents an in depth empirical exploration and mapping of mild ASCs Dr Sheppard examines original research conducted in a range of religious and secular contexts with participants who were engaged in activities including prayer sport nature conservation music and musical instrument making and TV viewing The author takes a novel phenomenological approach to the analysis of ASCs emphasising the subjective experience The book explores the healing potential of such mild ASCs the everyday fantasy reality of the interior landscape and discusses the problem of validity and belief in the study of ASCs It will appeal to students and scholars of transpersonal psychology consciousness studies social anthropology and the philosophy of mind
