Understanding Assessment in the Special Education Process

Roger Pierangelo, George Giuliani, 2007-11-13 This handbook explains applicable federal regulations and clarifies the referral assessment and evaluation process that helps determine student eligibility for special education and related services

Resources in Education, 2001-10 Educational Evaluations of Children with Special Needs David Breiger, Kristen Bishop, G. Andrew H. Benjamin, 2014 Over 6.5 million children receive special education services each year in the U.S. As this number continues to rise child and school psychologists are increasingly called upon to evaluate children and to recommend accommodations to meet the child's educational needs But the process of evaluating children can be challenging as it is often fraught with conflict between parents and school personnel Even seasoned clinicians may have difficulty navigating the myriad legal professional and personal issues involved This book is a step by step guide describing how to perform an independent educational evaluation for children with special needs Chapters describe the suggested format and content of initial meetings with parents and school officials the assessment and evaluation process how to piece together the final report and additional issues that arise after the final settlement including testimony in due process hearings The authors also provide a full explanation of the applicable legal statutes regarding special education services and the legal boundaries of the evaluator s responsibilities Perhaps most importantly they provide crucial suggestions for how evaluators can navigate conflict that often arises between parents and school officials while remaining focused on providing the best possible education for all children

Conducting Educational Needs Assessments D.L. Stufflebeam, Charles H. McCormick, Robert O. Brinkerhoff, Cheryl O. Nelson, 2012-12-06

What goals should be addressed by educational programs What priorities should be assigned to the different goals What funds should be allocated to each goal How can quality services be maintained with declining school enrollments and shrinking revenues What programs could be cut if necessary The ebb and flow of the student population the changing needs of our society and the fluctuation of resources constantly impinge on the education system Educators must deal with students communities and social institutions that are dynamic resulting in changing needs It is in the context of attempting to be responsive to these changes and to the many wishes and needs that schools are asked to address that needs assessment can be useful Needs assessment is a process that helps one to identify and examine both values and information It provides direction for making decisions about programs and resources It can include such relatively objective procedures as the statistical description and analysis of standardized test data and such subjective procedures as public testimony and values clarification activities Needs assessment can be a part of community relations facilities planning and consolidation program development and evaluation and resource allocation Needs assessment thus addresses a
