Birds in London William Henry Hudson, 1923

The Birds of London Andrew Self, 2014-04-24 The first comprehensive avifauna for the London area ever published covering the status distribution and history of every species on the regional list in rich detail

Birds in London W. Hudson, 2018-02-10 The opening chapter contains by way of introduction all that need be said concerning the object and scope of this work it remains to say here that as my aim has been to furnish an account of the London wild bird life of to day there was little help to be had from the writings of previous observers These mostly deal with the central parks and are interesting now mainly as showing the changes that have taken place At the end of the volume a list will be found of the papers and books on the subject which are known to me This list will strike many readers as an exceedingly meagre one when it is remembered that London has always been a home of ornithologists that from the days of Oliver Goldsmith who wrote pleasantly of the Temple Gardens rookery and of Thomas Pennant and his friend Daines Barrington there have never been wanting observers of the wild bird life within our gates The fact remains that with the exception of a few incidental passages to be found in various ornithological works nothing was expressly written about the birds of London until James Jennings s Ornithologia saw the light a little over seventy years ago Jennings s work was a poem probably the worst ever written in the English language but as he inserted copious notes fortunately in prose embodying his own observations on the bird life of east and south east London the book has a very considerable interest for us to day Nothing more of importance appeared until the late Shirley Hibberd s lively paper on London Birds in 1865 From that date onward the subject has attracted an increased attention and at present we have a number of London or park naturalists as they might be called who view the resident London species as adapted to an urban life and who chronicle their observations in the Field Nature Zoologist Nature Notes and other natural history journals and in the newspapers and magazines

K. Swann, 2018-02-08 Excerpt from The Birds of London A few words upon the various localities mentioned in the following pages may perhaps not be out of place here especially as such a small proportion of our donors are at all well acquainted with the said localities and even those that are will probably pardon me this slight digression To begin then in the east the farthest point mentioned is Dagenham Lake This is situated some four miles beyond Barking and on the north side of the Thames with which it was until recently connected It is a deep and clear sheet of water and is fully a mile in length by perhaps one sixth of a mile in breadth at the widest part The edge of the water is fringed with dense beds of reeds and sedges forming a cover for water fowl which however are not abundant owing no doubt to the lake being so much frequented by fishermen and gunners Nevertheless in the early morning particularly in the latter part of the year a few wild ducks of several species may be seen while the wary and artful moor hen is always about In the beds of reeds viii
