The Problem of Slavery in the Age of Emancipation David Brion Davis, 2014-02-04 Winner of the 2014 National Book Critics Circle Award for General Nonfiction Shortlisted for the 2014 Cundill Prize in Historical Literature From the revered historian the long awaited conclusion of the magisterial history of slavery and emancipation in Western culture that has been nearly fifty years in the making David Brion Davis is one of the foremost historians of the twentieth century winner of the Pulitzer Prize the National Book Award the Bancroft Prize and nearly every award given by the historical profession Now with The Problem of Slavery in the Age of Emancipation Davis brings his staggeringly ambitious prizewinning trilogy on slavery in Western culture to a close Once again Davis offers original and penetrating insights into what slavery and emancipation meant to Americans He explores how the Haitian Revolution respectively terrified and inspired white and black Americans hovering over the antislavery debates like a bloodstained ghost and he offers a surprising analysis of the complex and misunderstood significance of colonization the project to move freed slaves back to Africa to members of both races and all political persuasions He vividly portrays the dehumanizing impact of slavery as well as the generally unrecognized importance of freed slaves to abolition Most of all Davis presents the age of emancipation as a model for reform and as probably the greatest landmark of willed moral progress in human history This is a monumental and harrowing undertaking following the century of struggle rebellion and warfare that led to the eradication of slavery in the new world An in depth investigation a rigorous colloquy of ideas ranging from Frederick Douglass to Barack Obama from British industrial wage slavery to the Chicago World's Fair The Problem of Slavery in the Age of Emancipation is a brilliant conclusion to one of the great works of American history Above all Davis captures how America wrestled with demons of its own making and moved forward

Represented Brenna Wynn Greer, 2019-07-12 In 1948 Moss Kendrix a former New Deal public relations officer founded a highly successful Washington D C based public relations firm the flagship client of which was the Coca Cola Company As the first black pitchman for Coca Cola Kendrix found his way into the rarefied world of white corporate America His personal phone book also included the names of countless black celebrities such as bandleader Duke Ellington singer actress Pearl Bailey and boxer Joe Louis with whom he had built relationships in the course of developing marketing campaigns for his numerous federal and corporate clients Kendrix along with Ebony publisher John H Johnson and Life photographer Gordon Parks recognized that in the image saturated world of postwar America media in all its forms held greater significance for defining American citizenship than ever before For these imagemakers the visual representation of African Americans as good citizens was good business In Represented Brenna Wynn Greer explores how black entrepreneurs produced magazines photographs and advertising that forged a close association between blackness and Americanness In particular they popularized conceptions of African Americans as enthusiastic consumers a status essential to postwar citizenship claims But their media creations were complicated subject to marketplace dictates they often relied on gender class and family stereotypes Demand for such representations came not only from corporate and government clients to fuel mass consumerism and attract support for national efforts such as the fight against fascism but also from African Americans who sought depictions of blackness to counter racist ideas that undermined their rights and their national belonging as citizens The story of how black capitalists made the market work for racial progress on their way to making money reminds us that the path to civil rights involved commercial endeavors as well as social and political activism
