Weaving a Family Barbara Katz Rothman, 2005. A man, a woman, and their biological children, all of the same race: the mythical nuclear family has been the bedrock of American cultural, religious, social, and economic life since the Revolutionary War, and even with all the changes we have absorbed in the last sixty years, it essentially remains so. Current trends in adoption, however, have begun to shift the dominant paradigm of the family in ways never before imagined. Professional estimates show that in the United States today, seven million families have been formed by adoption, and 700,000 of them are interracial. These still-growing numbers have begun to radically change the face of the traditional American family. Barbara Katz Rothman, a noted sociologist who has explored motherhood in four previous books and has more recently explored the social implications of the human genome project, now turns her eye toward race and family. Weaving together the sociological, the historical, and the personal, Barbara Katz Rothman looks at the contemporary American family through the lens of race, race through the lens of adoption, and all family, race and adoption, within the context of the changing meanings of motherhood. She asks urgent and provocative questions about children as commodities, about trophy children, about the impact of genetics, and about how these adopted children will find their racial, ethnic, or cultural identities. Drawing on her own experience as the white mother of a black child, on historical research on white people raising black children from slavery to contemporary times, and pulling together work on race, adoption, and consumption, Rothman offers us new insights for understanding the way that race and family are shaped in America today. This book is compelling reading, not only for those interested in family and society, but for anyone grappling with the myriad issues that surround raising a child of a different race. The Adoption Decision Laura Christianson, 2007. In North America, more and more families are adding members through adoption. And there are more ways to adopt and kinds of adoption than ever. This quick start resource will help prospective parents consider key emotional and spiritual issues up front, before they plunge into the near-overwhelming mass of details and start to run into roadblocks, even dead ends. Laura Christianson, an adoption educator and mentor and an adoptive mom herself, brings her experience and knowledge to address unspoken but crucial questions about loving an adopted child, extended family's reaction, expenses, openness in adoption, the role of birth parents, physical disabilities, emotional/behavioral challenges, racial and cultural prejudices. Recounting real-life miracles and mishaps of adoptive families, the author will help prospective parents and their friends and family members think through adoption's challenges and joys.
