Autobiographical Chapter and Letters Charles Darwin, 2016-08-26 Charles Robert Darwin was an English naturalist and geologist best known for his contributions to the science of evolution He established that all species of life have descended over time from common ancestors and in a joint publication with Alfred Russel Wallace introduced his scientific theory that this branching pattern of evolution resulted from a process that he called natural selection in which the struggle for existence has a similar effect to the artificial selection involved in selective breeding Darwin published his theory of evolution with compelling evidence in his 1859 book On the Origin of Species overcoming scientific rejection of earlier concepts of transmutation of species By the 1870s the scientific community and much of the general public had accepted evolution as a fact However many favoured competing explanations and it was not until the emergence of the modern evolutionary synthesis from the 1930s to the 1950s that a broad consensus developed in which natural selection was the basic mechanism of evolution In modified form Darwin's scientific discovery is the unifying theory of the life sciences explaining the diversity of life Darwin's early interest in nature led him to neglect his medical education at the University of Edinburgh instead he helped to investigate marine invertebrates Studies at the University of Cambridge Christ's College encouraged his passion for natural science His five year voyage on HMS Beagle established him as an eminent geologist whose observations and theories supported Charles Lyell's uniformitarian ideas and publication of his journal of the voyage made him famous as a popular author
