children and tend to her family's domestic affairs. Untypically, she was also schooled by her father in all aspects of plantation management from seed cultivation to building construction. That grounding would serve her well. By 1842, her husband's properties were seized owing to debts amassed from crop failures, economic downturns, and extensive investments in land, enslaved workers, and the development of the nearby port town of Brunswick. Anna and her family were sustained, however, by Retreat, the St. Simons Island property left to her in trust by her father. With the labor of fifty bondpeople and their increase, she was to strive with little aid from her husband to keep the plantation solvent. A valuable record of King's many roles from accountant to mother, from doctor to horticulturist, the letters also reveal much about her relationship with and attitudes toward her enslaved workers. Historians have yet to fully understand the lives of plantation mistresses left on their own by husbands pursuing political and other professional careers. Anna Matilda Page King's letters give us insight into one such woman who reluctantly entered but nonetheless excelled in the male domains of business and agriculture. The Garden
