Autobiography of Protest in Hawaii Robert H. Mast, Anne B. Mast, 1997-01-01 Autobiography of Protest in Hawaii explores the state's social and economic fabric through the comments of 35 progressive activists. The activists, ranging in age from the mid 30s to the late 70s, comment on their involvement on issues such as housing, labor, land use, poverty, environment, sexual harassment, seniors, and sovereignty. Almost one half are women, and there is an even split between those born in Hawaii and those born elsewhere. The book begins with an overview of political activism in Hawaii and then records the oral history of the individual activists. Each was asked to respond to factors that shaped their moral and political lives. They were invited to explore the forces and events in their past that led them to take on an activist role. The activists were also asked to provide personal assessments of insights gained from their experiences and how they can be applied today; their analysis of Hawaii at that time; and some speculation on Hawaii's future. The result is a book that produces some very interesting and controversial viewpoints on Hawaii's political socialization and history.

Primary Corridor Transportation Project, Major Investment Study, 2003 Honolulu High-capacity Transit Corridor Project, City and County of Honolulu, O`ahu, 2010 The Mana of Translation Bryan Kamaoli Kuwada, 2024-12-31

In The Mana of Translation, Bryan Kamaoli Kuwada makes visible the often unseen workings of translation in Hawaii from the advent of Hawaiian alphabetic literacy to contemporary struggles over language and land. Translation has had a massive impact on Hawaiian history both as it unfolded and how it came to be understood, yet it remains understudied in Hawaiian and Indigenous scholarship. In an engaging and wide-ranging analysis, Kuwada examines illuminative instances of translation across the last two centuries through the analytic of mana unuhi, the mana power authority branch version attained or given through translation. Translation has long been seen as a tool of colonialism, but examining history through mana unuhi demonstrates how Hawaiians used translation as a powerful tool to assert their own literary, cultural, and political sovereignty, something Hawaiians think of in terms of ea (life, breath, sovereignty) rising. Translation also gave mana to particular stories about Hawaiians, some empowering, others harmful, creating a clash of narratives that continue to this day. Drawing on sources in Hawaiian and English that span newspapers, letters, and journals, religious and legal documents, missionary records, court transcripts, traditional stories, and more, this book makes legible the utility and importance of paying attention to mana unuhi in Hawaii and beyond. Through chapters on translating the Hawaiian Bible, the role of translation in the Hawaiian Kingdom's bilingual legal system, Hawaiians' powerful deployment of translation in nineteenth-century pepa newspapers, the early twentieth-century era of extractive scholarly translation, and the possibilities that come from refusing translation as demonstrated in legal proceedings related to the protection of Maunakea, Kuwada questions narratives about the inevitability of colonial victory and the idea that things can only be lost in translation. Writing in an accessible yet rigorous style, Kuwada follows the flows of translation and its material practices to bring forth the power dynamics of languages and how these differential forces play out on ideological and political
