Abstract

Language in-education policy in Ghana has been in a flux since British colonial rule but particularly so after independence. A close examination of post independence language in-education policies shows these fluctuating policies have moved from one form of bilingual education policy to another. Many tensions and paradoxes that arise from bilingual education policies in multi-ethnic/multilingual communities stem from a conflict between policy decisions that are rooted in a particular linguistic tradition and the sociolinguistic realities such policies are to address. In this article, I present a brief historical account of the developments of language policy in education in Ghana since independence and argue that while the flux may have been caused in part by instability in government leadership, it may have also occurred as a result of possible tensions between the set objectives and the implementation of such policies, i.e. that the policies may have been based on assumptions that do not reflect the sociolinguistic practices in Ghana.

Introduction

According to Freeland (2003, p.239), the frequent collocation of the terms multilingualism and bilingual education in the literature suggests 'an image of mosaics of discrete linguistic and cultural groups'. This seems to have been the framework within which early language in-education policies operated. They were designed to assimilate minorities, indigenous or immigrant groups into societies that were imagined to be monolingual or mono-cultural. Such language policies aimed at producing people with bilingual competences in their original language and a dominant language or state language. While such language policies have been adopted and applied in multilingual/multi-ethnic communities, findings from recent research suggest that 'the multilingual, multicultural mosaic itself is ideologically constructed' (Freeland, 2003, p.238).

In other words, the assumption that multilingual/multi-ethnic communities are clearly bounded and homogeneous along linguistic lines is merely ideological. Indeed, ethnographic studies of multilingual practices in research context such essentialist assumptions (Le Page and Tabouret-Keller, 1985; Rampton, 1995). Such studies on highly multilingual/multicultural communities around the world, e.g. India (Pattanayak, 1990), Africa (Heugh and Pladdeman, 1995), Pacific (Mühlhäusler, 1996), and Central America (Freeland, 2003), have demonstrated the inadequacy of relying on essentialist

Alternative language policies for education in Ghana Fui F. Gbedemah, 1981 Alternative Language Policies for Education in Ghana F. F. K. Gbedemah, 1975 Multilingualism, Language in Education, and Academic Literacy Adika, Gordon S.K., Asante, Charles C., 2015-04-02 The Language Centre was founded in 1970 as a language research department in the University of Ghana under the then Faculty of Arts. Its mandate was to focus on research and teaching related to the improvement of performance in English the official language and the various Ghanaian languages as vectors of education culture and community interaction. Since the 1970s the Centre has been focusing on research related to language learning teaching and assessment language endangerment and documentation multilingualism intercultural communication and the interconnected areas of language and literature. This book in essence reflects these research areas but more than that the constitutive research articles were produced jointly or severally by different generations of directors and research fellows of the Centre over the four decades of the organization's existence. The ten chapters of this commemorative anthology comprise selected research articles from a very large pool of previously published works with continuing relevance as well as more recent works that have not yet been published. The book is not designed for release as a discrete and independent publication. On the contrary it feeds into a much wider set of commemorative collections from diverse units all of which are thematically linked in a manner designed to project the mission of the University of Ghana.

Political Independence with Linguistic Servitude Samuel Gyasi Obeng, Beverly Hartford, 2002 This book addresses important issues to the democratisation and development initiatives of developing countries. In many former colonies the government remains centralised and many in the population are unable to fully participate in its functioning. A critical difference between being a subject and a citizen is the ability to partake in governance. Such involvement requires knowledge literacy and the availability of literature in local and national languages. This book challenges policy makers and scholars to find creative ways of fostering political empowerment through developing language programmes.

African Languages, Development and the State Richard Fardon, Graham Furniss, 2002-11 This shows that multilingualism does not pose for Africans the problems of communication that Europeans imagine and that the mismatch between policy statements and their pragmatic outcomes is a far more serious problem for future development.

The Other Tongue Braj B. Kachru, 1992 When The Other Tongue appeared in 1982 it was called required reading for all those concerned with English teaching in non native situations from the classroom teacher to the policy planner. John Platt English World Wide and an extremely useful and stimulating collection. William C Ritchie Language It introduced refreshingly new perspectives for understanding the spread and functions of English around the world. This dramatically revised volume contains eight new chapters replacing or updating more than half of the first edition. The Other Tongue is the first attempt to integrate and address provocative issues relevant to a deeper understanding of the forms and functions of English within different sociolinguistic cross cultural and cross linguistic contexts. The volume
