Sustainable Improvement Coral Mitchell, Larry Sickney, 2019-02-11 Drawing on two decades of research into the nature of schools as learning communities the authors build on a prior model of learning communities that integrated three domains of capacity personal interpersonal and organizational In this text the authors move the capacity building model into practice and elaborate a theory of learning communities This book situates learning communities in living systems and ecological perspectives The fundamental premise is that all of human life and human activity is part of a deep planetary ecology of which mutuality and interdependence are cornerstone properties learning and renewal are key processes and emergent networks are foundational structures The text juxtaposes these conceptions with educational practices in order to understand what makes practice different in learning community schools The authors argue that sustainable educational improvement emerges from a reciprocal process of building people who are constantly learning building commitments to authentic learning and building schools with a relentless focus on learning The authors conclude that building a sustainable learning community requires a profound shift in how learning is understood discussed valued enabled and expressed This shift they argue is essential as schools face the challenges and opportunities in the knowledge society Being Interdisciplinary Alan Wilson, 2022-05-03 In Being Interdisciplinary Alan Wilson draws on five decades as a leading figure in urban science to set out a systems approach to interdisciplinarity for those conducting research in this and other fields He argues that most research is interdisciplinary at base and that a systems perspective is particularly appropriate for collaboration because it fosters an outlook that sees beyond disciplines There is a more subtle thread too A systems approach enables researchers to identify the game changers of the past as a basis for thinking outside convention for learning how to do something new and how to be ambitious in a nutshell how to be creative Ultimately the ideas presented address how to do research Building on this systems focus the book first establishes the basics of interdisciplinarity Then by drawing on the author s experience of doing interdisciplinary research and working from his personal toolkit it offers general principles and a framework from which researchers can build their own interdisciplinary toolkit with elements ranging from explorations of game changers in research to superconcepts In the last section the book tackles questions of managing and organising research from individual to institutional scales Alan Wilson deploys his wide experience researcher in urban science university professor and vice chancellor civil servant and institute director to build the narrative While his experience in urban science provides the illustrations the principles apply across many research fields Superintendent Leadership Elaine L.
