The United Kingdom, 1700-2010 Steven Toms, 2024-02-28 Financial fraud is a serious and seemingly intractable problem Financial scandals regularly punctuate newspaper headlines and regulators and auditors appear bereft of effective responses But has this always been the case This book quantifies financial crime in the UK using three centuries of data It demonstrates how financial fraud and scandal vary according to systematic economic and institutional arrangements In doing so it retells the history of British capitalism from the mercantilism of the eighteenth century to the financial capitalism of the twenty first century illustrating the often negative consequences of economic ideology policy and structure It identifies periods when fraud has been less problematic and contrasts these with times when it has surged The variation of outcomes reflects the balance of power between the state industrial and financial sectors the provision of credit through risky lending and the effectiveness of audits Rogue traders and other flawed individuals are frequently the focus of blame narratives constructed with the intention of deflecting comprehensive systematic reforms The UK Accounting Standards Board, 1990-2000 David

Tweedie, Allan Cook, Geoffrey Whittington, 2023-07-28 In the late 1980s financial accounting in Britain was in disarray Creative accounting was rife The authority of the industry s standard setters had been drastically compromised when their rules for inflation accounting were first ignored by many firms and then abandoned There were calls for government to replace the accountants self regulation with a tough regulatory regime close to the American model Also rapid change in the financial industry was generating complex new financial schemes for which existing accounting standards were inadequate This book tells the story of the next decade the problems the standard setters faced both technical and political the resistance they met the solutions they developed and the durability of their work Innovations they developed have become part of global accounting standards The story is told in the words of three board members all of whom had spent their careers in accounting one as a senior technical partner of a Big 4 audit firm one as an executive in major multinational businesses one as a university professor respectively the Chairman Sir David Tweedie the Technical Director Allan Cook and the academic board member Professor Geoffrey Whittington The medium is for the most part conversation with the standard setters questioned by Cambridge Professor Geoff Meeks recorded over three years producing a more vivid picture of motivations and events Also in this technically demanding subject it has the advantage of a simpler more informal and engaging conversational style and language The book will appeal not just to accountants interested in the origins of the rules they are following and students learning why those rules were adopted but also to anyone interested in how in spheres beyond accounting to harness the expertise and support of business regulatees without suffering regulatory capture
