Art, Crime and Madness Shlomo Giora Shoham, 2003-01-01 Art Crime and Madness explores the relationship between creative innovation deviance and morbidity To innovate one has to be able to view the medium and the object of creativity in a different hitherto unexplored manner The essence of art is creative innovation coupled with an ability in varying degrees to transcend the boundaries of consciousness But this ability is also the prerogative of the mentally deranged Likewise the criminal and the deviant are more likely to transcend normative barriers while creating hence the wide range of criminal and deviant behaviour in society Although the inverse hypothesis does not hold the mere existence of deviance or morbidity does not predispose the individual to creativity nevertheless criminal and mad behaviour are often very innovative This thesis is illustrated by historical case histories of creative deviance and genius madness and contemporary observations The painter Michelangelo Merisi Caravaggio killed a man while still a teenager and a second victim during a ball game In his lifetime he was considered degenerate but today he is considered the greatest painter of the Italian Settecento and his portrait adorns the Hundred Thousand Lira note Jean Genet the homosexual thief was born out of wedlock and as a teenager he transgressed almost all the paragraphs of the French criminal code But he became a famous French playwright the mouthpiece for criminals and deviants His plays built up a philosophical apology for the raison d'être of the criminal group

The State and the Art Richard Van Herzele, The role of private actors in policing has become a topic in both research and policy as police forces face budgetary and expertise related constraints These challenges are evident in art crime policing where a lack of prioritisation often means limited resources are allocated for a crime that requires significant expertise to tackle Cooperating with private actors has been mooted as a solution to this deficit but empirical research to support this suggestion is scarce This book helps fill this gap by examining the interaction between specialist art crime police units and private actors in Belgium the United Kingdom and France Its central questions are whether cooperation already exists in art crime policing and why or not It was found that while limits to police capacity are an important driver for private outreach several other factors also significantly affect cooperation This book is relevant for policy practice and research as it examines a hitherto less discussed topic which is nonetheless urgent as art crime shows little signs of abating
