Women in Public Life Gender, Law and Policy in the Middle East and North Africa OECD, Center of Arab Woman for Training and Research, 2014-11-27 This report provides a comparative overview of the policies affecting women's participation in public life across the MENA region. It examines the existing barriers to women's access to public decision making positions and provides a cross country assessment of current instruments and institutions Middle East and North Africa Economic Developments and Prospects, January 2011 World Bank, 2013 The impact of the global financial and economic crisis on the Middle East and North Africa region was relatively mild. Lack of integration and a large public sector helped insulate the region to some extent but now these and other factors are slowing down the speed of its economic recovery. The report examines the major factors threatening the recovery and those that obstruct long term growth especially non oil export growth which in net terms contributed little to regional growth during the past decade with non oil exports remaining below potential in many countries in the region. The report emphasizes several major areas in need of policy makers' attention including restrictive trade policies particularly those affecting trade in services governance issues linked to uneven application of rules and regulations inefficient and inflexible labor markets and scarcity of skills innovation and technological capabilities page xi A New Arab Social Contract? Maximilian Benner, 2019-05-27 This monograph offers a unique conceptual bridge between economic geography and Middle Eastern political economy. Arab economies are confronted with enormous structural difficulties such as high rates of youth unemployment in a challenging demographic context exacerbated by intense spatial disparities. These structural problems demonstrate the breakdown of the Arab social contract a social arrangement centered on a strong role of the state in welfare and employment provision for which regimes demanded acquiescence to authoritarian rule. The book argues that the Arab social contract can be understood in terms of regulation theories known in economic geography and sociology. It uses the approaches such as the regulation school national systems of innovation social systems of production and varieties of capitalism to analyze the structural difficulties of Arab economies and current reform efforts. The basic assumption is that Arab economies are currently faced with a structural crisis. After the breakdown of the Arab social contract there is a mismatch between the economic and institutional spheres of society. The challenge is for Arab societies to develop new forms of socio institutional regulation. The book proposes ways towards such new modes of regulation by developing a framework for regulation specifically targeted towards Arab societies and by applying it to the cases of Tunisia and Jordan International Trade with the Middle East and North Africa Hossein Esmaeili, Vivienne Brand, Susan L. Karamanian, 2024-06-28 This book provides an interdisciplinary analysis of trade relations with the Middle East and Arab countries from the perspectives of law business policy and culture in the Middle East and the Arab world and their interaction with the wider world particularly Western countries.
