Foster, 1985 The Grove Encyclopedia of American Art Joan M. Marter, 2011 Arranged in alphabetical order these 5 volumes encompass the history of the cultural development of America with over 2300 entries The Beribboned Bomb Robert James Belton, 1995 Surrealism was ostensibly directed at the emancipation of the human spirit but it represented only male aspirations and fantasies until a number of women artists began to redefine its agenda in the later 1930s This book addresses the former using a thick description of the historically specific circumstances which required the male Surrealists to manufacture a sexual reputation of narcissism and misogyny These circumstances were determined by hegemonic masculinity an ideological construct which had little to do with individual masculinities In male Surrealism the beribboned bomb signified something both attractive and volatile a specific instance of the Surrealist principle of convulsive beauty In hegemonic masculinity similar devices served as metaphors of the sexuality all men were supposed to possess The intersection of these two axes produced an imagery of unrepentant violence Flight Out of Time Hugo Ball, 1996-05-06 A key document Indispensable for an understanding of the beginnings of the Dada movement and Dada in Zurich Rudolf Kuenzli Director International Dada Archive In Flight Out of Time one can follow Dada's unfolding and expansion almost day by day Charles Haxthausen coeditor Berlin Culture and Metropolis Lee Miller, Photography, Surrealism and the Second World War Lynn Hilditch, 2018-01-23 Lee Miller 1907 1977 was an American born Surrealist and war photographer who through her role as a model for Vogue magazine became the apprentice of Man Ray in Paris and later one of the few women war correspondents to cover the Second World War from the frontline Her comprehensive understanding of art enabled her to photograph vivid representations of Europe at war the changing gender roles of women in war work the destruction caused by enemy fire during the London Blitz and the horrors of the concentration camps that embraced and adapted the principles and methods of Surrealism This book examines how Miller's war photographs can be interpreted as surreal documentary combining a surrealist sensibility with a need to inform. Each chapter contains a close analysis of specific photographs in a generally chronological study with a thematic focus using comparisons with other photographers, documentary artists and Surrealists such as Margaret Bourke White, Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, George Rodger, Cecil Beaton, Bill Brandt, Henry Moore, Humphrey Jennings and Man Ray. In addition, Miller's photographs are explored through Andr  Breton's theory of convulsive beauty, his credence that any subject, no matter how horrible, may be interpreted as art, and his notion of the marvellous.

The Visible Word Johanna Drucker, 1994. Drucker skillfully traces the development of this critical position, suggesting a methodology closer to the actual practices of the early avant garde artists based on a rereading of their critical and theoretical writings. After reviewing theories of signification, the production of meaning and materiality, she analyzes the work of four poets active in the typographic experimentation of the 1910s and 1920s: Ilia Zdanevich, Filippo Marinetti, Guillaume Apollinaire and Tristan Tzara. Drucker explores the context for experimental typography in terms of printing, handwriting and other practices concerned with the visual representation of language. Her book concludes with a brief look at the ways in which experimental techniques of the early avant garde were transformed in both literary work and in applications to commercial design throughout the 1920s and early 1930s.

Inspiration: Bacchus and the Cultural History of a Creation Myth John F. Moffitt, 2005-05-01. The purpose of this book is to reveal the antique pedigree of a now commonplace term: Inspiration, an essential creation myth now propelling notions of self-expression in modern art making. Knowledge of the ancient sources of such supposedly modernist fixations will make a significant contribution to historical cultural thinking, particularly by showing in detail the facts of an unrecognized evolutionary continuity. In order to personify Inspiration, this study initially focuses upon Michelangelo's Bacchus of 1496, so revealing now forgotten meanings once typically to be attached in a generic way to any Bacchus. Then it demonstrates how these Dionysiac concepts arose in ancient Greece. Later developments, particularly from the Middle Ages through the Renaissance, are traced here for the first time. Due to further modifications by Friedrich Nietzsche, Dionysiac expressionism eventually became a staple of modern art theory and practice.

Cooking with Mud David Trotter, 2000. Mess is age old and universal as phenomenon and as topic. The evidence collected in this book suggests, however, that the second half of the nineteenth century saw the first stirrings in Western culture of a primary interest in mess for its own sake. Messes like modern identities happen by accident; their representation in painting and fiction made it possible to think boldly and inventively about chance. Ranging widely from Turner to Degas and from Melville to Maupassant and the New Woman writers, this book outlines a style of commentary on modern life in which the ancient dichotomy of order and chaos was supplanted by a distinction between different kinds of mess.

Challenging Modernity Mark A. Pegrum, 2000. This book for the first time examines in depth the link between modernism and postmodernism and demonstrates the extensive similarities as well as the few crucial differences between the ideas and art of the Dadaists on the one hand and those of contemporary postmodern thinkers and artists on the other
