Layne, 2013-10-28 Drawing on both sociological and anthropological perspectives, this volume explores cross national trends and everyday experiences of parenting. Parenting in Global Perspective examines the significance of parenting as a subject of professional expertise and activity in which adults are increasingly expected to be emotionally absorbed and become personally fulfilled. By focusing the significance of parenting as a form of relationship and as mediated by family relationships across time and space, the book explores the points of accommodation and points of tension between parenting as defined by professionals and those experienced by parents themselves. Specific themes include the ways in which the moral context for parenting is negotiated and sustained, the structural constraints to good parenting, particularly in cases of immigration or reproductive technologies, the relationship between intimate family life and broader cultural trends, parenting culture, policy making and nationhood, parenting and adult identity work. Including contributions on parenting from a range of ethnographic locales from Europe, Canada, and the US to non Euro American settings such as Turkey, Chile, and Brazil, this volume presents a uniquely critical and international perspective which positions parenting as a global ideology that intersects in a variety of ways with the political, social, cultural, and economic positions of parents and families.

Changing Family Systems Tapologo Maundeni, Lisa Lopez Levers, Gloria Jacques, 2008 Global Aging and Its Challenge to Families Vern L. Bengtson, Ariela Lowenstein, The recent explosion in population aging across the globe represents one of the most remarkable demographic changes in human history There is much concern about population aging and its consequences for nations for governments and for individuals It has often been noted that population aging will inevitably affect the economic stability of most countries and the policies of most state governments. What is less obvious but equally important is that population aging will profoundly affect families. Who will care for the growing numbers of tomorrow's very old members of societies? Will it be state governments? The aged themselves? Their families? The purpose of this volume is to examine consequences of global aging for families and intergenerational support and for nations as they plan for the future. Four remarkable social changes during the past fifty years are highlighted: 1. Extension of the life course: A generation has been added to the average span of life over the past century. 2. Changes in the age structures of nations: Most nations today have many more elders and many fewer children than fifty years ago. 3. Changes in family structures and relationships: Some of these differences are the result of trends in family structure, notably higher divorce rates and the higher incidence of childbearing to single parents. 4. Changes in governmental responsibilities: In the last decade, governmental responsibility appears to have slowed or reversed as states reduce welfare expenditures. How will families respond to twenty-first century problems associated with population aging? Will families indeed be important in the twenty-first century, or will kinship and the obligations across generations become increasingly irrelevant, replaced by personal communities? This volume goes a considerable distance to answer these critical issues for the twenty-first century.

Vern L. Bengtson is an AARP University Chair in Gerontology and Professor of Sociology, University of Southern California.

Ariela Lowenstein is associate professor and head, Department of Aging Studies, University of Haifa, Israel. Global Aging
