Mental Health Services in Europe

Brimblecombe Neil, Peter Nolan, 2023-01-20. Worldwide mental health problems are set to become the second greatest threat to health by the end of the next decade. The European Union has identified mental health problems as a growing concern although there is great variation within EU countries with respect to patient numbers and the range of facilities available to them. Historically EU mental healthcare services have been analysed using measurable aspects of care provisions such as throughput, costs and outcome measures. Little is known of the experiences, perceptions, beliefs and values of those accessing and providing services. This enlightening new book adopts a very different approach. With a particular focus on nursing it examines and critiques the state of specialist mental health services in nine EU countries: Czech Republic, Finland, Ireland, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Germany, United Kingdom and Portugal. Each chapter focuses on a single country and ascertains existing services, their development, the treatments and care provided, factors preventing better service delivery and suggestions for improvement. A rich pattern of differences emerges and comparisons can then be drawn. It also explores the emergence of an EU mental health identity in regards to selection of mental health personnel, their training and education and the range of services they provide. Healthcare professionals and students with a particular interest in mental health issues, especially those with an interest in international approaches, will welcome the fresh analysis. It provides vital new information for European policy makers and shapers, voluntary sector personnel and service users and the organisations representing them.

Climate Change and Mental Health Equity

Rhonda J. Moore, 2024-07-18. Climate change is a driver of poverty, poor mental health, inequity and increased intersectional vulnerability with significant differential global impacts on individual and community health and well being. For example, people living in low resource settings in high income countries (HICs) and in low and middle income countries (LMICs) are at greater risk, often experiencing fragile socioeconomic, political and health infrastructures and conflict affected settings (FCAS) that place them at greater risk and vulnerabilities to climate change related mental health impacts. The broad goal of this book is to place a social justice and inclusive lens on climate change and mental health equity, focusing on these three key elements: people, place and community. The book includes perspectives from the global North, the global South and Indigenous perspectives to help provide greater insight into how we can better understand climate change and mental health equity across peoples, place and community. This book's three pronged approach will focus on certain trends in this emerging and growing field, also bridging some of the more extensive gaps and is a tool for better understanding how mental health disparities might be addressed at this time
