Changing The Subject Mary Wroth And Figurations Of Gender In Early Modern England:

Changing The Subject Naomi Miller, 2014-10-17 Lady Mary Wroth c 1587 1653 wrote the first sonnet sequence in English by a woman one of the first plays by a woman and the first published work of fiction by an Englishwoman Yet despite her status as a member of the distinguished Sidney family Wroth met with disgrace at court for her authorship of a prose romance which was adjudged an inappropriate endeavor for a woman and was forcibly withdrawn from publication Only recently has recognition of Wroth's historical and literary importance been signaled by the publication of the first modern edition of her romance The Countess of Mountgomerie's Urania Naomi Miller offers an illuminating study of this significant early modern woman writer Using multiple critical theoretical perspectives including French feminism new historicism and cultural materialism she examines gender in Wroth's time Moving beyond the emphasis on victimization that shaped many previous studies she considers the range of strategies devised by women writers of the period to establish voices for themselves Where previous critics have viewed Wroth primarily in relation to her male literary predecessors in the Sidney family Miller explores Wroth's engagement with a variety of discourses reading her in relation to a broad range of English and continental authors both male and female from Sidney Spenser and Shakespeare to Aemilia Lanier Elizabeth Cary and Marguerite de Navarre She also contextualizes Wroth's writing in relation to a variety of nonliterary texts of the period both political and domestic Thanks to Miller's sensitive readings Wroth's writings provide a lens through which to view gender relations in the early modern period

Gender and the Garden in Early Modern English Literature Jennifer Munroe, 2017-03-02 Radical reconfigurations in gardening practice in sixteenth and seventeenth century England altered the social function of the garden offering men and women new opportunities for social mobility While recent work has addressed how middle class men used the garden to attain this mobility the gendering of the garden during the period has gone largely unexamined This new study focuses on the developing gendered tension in gardening that stemmed from a shift from the garden as a means of feeding a family to the garden as an aesthetic object imbued with status The first part of the book focuses on how practical gardening books proposed methods for planting as they simultaneously represented gardens increasingly hierarchized by gender The second part of the book looks at how men and women appropriated aesthetic uses of actual gardening in their poetry and reveals a parallel gendered tension there Munroe analyzes garden representations in the writings of such manuals writers as

Gervase Markham Thomas Hill and William Lawson and such poets as Edmund Spenser Aemilia Lanyer and Lady Mary Wroth Investigating gardens gender and writing Jennifer Munroe considers not only published literary representations of gardens but also actual garden landscapes and unpublished evidence of everyday gardening practice She de prioritizes the text as a primary means of cultural production showing instead the relationship between what men and women might imagine possible and represent in their writing and everyday spatial practices and the spaces men and women occupied and made In so doing she also broadens our outlook on whom we can identify and value as producers of early modern social space

Miller,2016-05-06 Though recent scholarship has focused both on motherhood and on romance literature in early modern England until now no full length volume has addressed the notable intersections between the two topics This collection contributes to the scholarly investigation of maternity in early modern England by scrutinizing romance narratives in various forms considering motherhood not as it was actually lived but as it was figured in the fantasy world of romance by authors ranging from Edmund Spenser to Margaret Cavendish Contributors explore the traditional association between romance and women both as readers of fiction and as tellers of old wives tales as well as the tendency of romance plots with their emphasis on the family and its reproduction to foreground matters of maternity Collectively the essays in this volume invite reflection on the uses to which Renaissance culture put maternal stereotypes the virgin mother the cruel step dame as well as the powerful fears and desires that mothers evoke assuage and sometimes express in the fantasy world of romance
