Covering Muslims Erik Bleich,A. Maurits van der Veen,2021 An examination of how American newspaper articles on Muslims are strikingly negative by any measure For decades scholars and observers have criticized negative media portrayals of Muslims and Islam Yet most of these critiques are limited by their focus on one specific location a limited time period or a single outlet In Covering Muslims Erik Bleich and A Maurits van der Veen present the first systematic large scale analysis of American newspaper coverage of Muslims through comparisons across groups time countries and topics The authors demonstrate conclusively that coverage of Muslims is remarkably negative by any measure They show that American newspapers have been consistently negative across the two decade period between 1996 and 2016 and that articles on Muslims are more negative than those touching on groups as diverse as Catholics Jews Hindus African Americans Latinos Mormons or atheists Strikingly even articles about mundane topics tend to be negative The authors suggest that media outlets both within and outside the United States may contribute to pervasive Islamophobia and they encourage readers and journalists to tone check the media rather than simply accepting negative associations with Muslims or other marginalized groups

Media Effects and Society Elizabeth M. Perse, 2001 Media Effects and Society provides an in depth look at media effects and offers a theoretical foundation for understanding mass media's impact on individuals and society. Working from the assumption that media effects are common and are underestimated, author Elizabeth M. Perse identifies dominant areas of media effects and provides a synthesis of those areas of research. She focuses on the theoretical explanations for media effects, offering explanations of how media effects occur so readers can understand how to mitigate harmful effects and enhance positive ones. This text provides comprehensive coverage of the range of media effects, including news diffusion, learning from the mass media, socialization of children and adolescents, influences on public opinion and voting, and violent and sexually explicit media content. It also presents a variety of theoretical approaches to understanding media effects, including psychological and content-based theories. In addition, it demonstrates how theories can guide future research into the effects of newer mass communication technologies. Written for those who study and conduct research in media effects, Media Effects and Society presents a thorough and accessible discussion of media effects theory. As such, it is appropriate for advanced courses on media effects, media theory, and media and society.

Constructivist Theories of Ethnic Politics Kanchan Chandra, 2012-10-25 Taking the possibility of change in ethnic identity into account, this book shows and dismantles the theoretical logics linking ethnic diversity to negative outcomes and processes such as democratic destabilisation, clientelism, riots, and state collapse. Even more importantly, it changes the questions we can ask about the relationship between ethnicity, politics, and economics.

What Price Fame? Tyler Cowen, 2000 In a world where more people know who Princess Di was than who their own senators are, where Graceland draws more visitors per year than the White House, and where Michael Jordan is an industry unto himself, fame and celebrity are central currencies. In this intriguing book, Tyler Cowen explores and elucidates the economics of fame. Fame motivates the talented and draws like-minded fans together. But it also may put profitability ahead of quality, visibility above subtlety, and privacy out of reach. The separation of fame and merit is one of the central dilemmas Cowen considers in his account of the modern market economy. He shows how fame is produced, outlines the principles that govern who becomes famous and why, and discusses whether fame-seeking behavior harmonizes individual and social interests or corrupts social discourse and degrades culture. Most pertinently, Cowen considers the implications of modern fame for creativity, privacy, and morality. Where critics from Plato to Allan Bloom have decried the quest for fame, Cowen takes a more pragmatic, optimistic view. He identifies the benefits of a fame-intensive society and makes a persuasive case that however bad fame may turn out to be for the famous, it is generally good for society and culture.

Political Communication in China Wenfang Tang, Shanto Iyengar, 2013-09-13 It is widely recognised that the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) uses the media to set the agenda for political discourse, propagate official policies, monitor public opinion, and rally regime support. State agencies in China control the full spectrum of media programming, either through ownership or the power to regulate. Political Communication in China
