Chalcolithic Cyprus:

Chalcolithic Cyprus J. Paul Getty Museum, 1997-02-27 This collection of papers presents the results of a symposium held at the Getty Museum in February 1990 Recent archaeological excavations provide evidence that Cyprus had a great cultural and economic importance during the Bronze Age The contributors discuss aspects of the Bronze Age as they relate to Cyprus and the eastern Mediterranean Topics include the economy of the period its basis in the exploitation of metals and stone Cyprus's international influence on trade and religion and evidence of that influence through interpretation of archaeological sites and artifacts Cyprus Before the Bronze Age Vassos Karageorghis, Edgar J. Peltenburg, Pavlos

Flourentzos, 1990-05-17 The latest finds architectural remains burial objects stone artifacts pottery and copper objects from recent excavations indicate that Cyprus played a more pivotal role in pre Bronze Age socioeconomic development than was previously thought This book describes findings from excavations at Lemba the site where the most important new information about this period has been uncovered Included are illustrations of many previously unpublished or unexhibited materials from both the Cyprus Museum and the J Paul Getty Museum This book serves as a catalog to the February 1990 exhibition held at the J Paul Getty Museum Cypriot Ceramics Jane A. Barlow, Diane Bolger, Barbara Kling, 1991 Prehistoric

Cypriot ceramics were widely traded especially in the late Bronze Age and constitute an important source of information about international trade and cultural relations in the Bronze and Iron Age eastern Mediterranean These papers were presented at an international conference held at the University of Pennsylvania Museum in October 1989 Symposium Series II University Museum Monograph 74 The Prehistoric Buildings of Chalcolithic Cyprus Gordon Thomas, 2005 This book documents the work and findings of the Lemba Experimental Village project in Cyprus The aims of this project are fourfold 1 To identify and characterize Chalcolithic period building materials as uncovered through excavation and to determine the type of technology used to manipulate those materials for building purposes 2 To classify and characterize all Chalcolithic building elements from Cyprus and from them to identify an architectural form and establish a set of building types within that form 3 To establish the Chalcolithic building form within the overall framework of Near Eastern building traditions and to demonstrate links or themes that can indicate a shared cultural tradition 4 To identify and characterize building deposits and building materials and to investigate the impact of buildings on archaeological site formation These ideas and hypotheses developed from them were tested and validated through the process of excavation experimental archaeology and ethnoarchaeology The Archaeology of Cyprus A. Bernard Knapp, 2013-03-18 This book examines the archaeology of Cyprus from the first known human presence during the Late Epipalaeolithic through the end of the Bronze Age Chalcolithic Cyprus , 1991 , Mortuary Ritual and Society in Bronze Age Cyprus Priscilla Keswani, 2004 A ground breaking investigation of burial practices and social transformations in the era when Cypriot agricultural communities moved from village to urban life and became major players in the eastern Mediterranean copper trade The author develops an innovative theoretical and methodological approach that enables her to define and elucidate the shifting spatial relationships between tombs and habitation areas the elaboration of rituals involving secondary treatment and collective burial and changing patterns of mortuary expenditure and symbolism throughout the Bronze Age Keswani proposes that during the Early Middle Bronze periods the growing elaboration of mortuary festivities and their crucial importance in negotiating status hierarchies contributed to the intensification of Cypriot copper production and the expansion of interregional exchange relations Subsequent changes in mortuary practice suggest that the importance of collective burial rites and traditional modes of ritual display diminished over the course of the Late Bronze Age as urban institutions multiplied and the bases of social prestige were transformed Figurine Makers of Prehistoric Cyprus Edgar Peltenburg, Diane Bolger, Lindy Crewe, 2019-07-31 The Chalcolithic period in Cyprus has been known since Porphyrios Dikaïos excavations at Erimi in the 1930s and through the appearance in the antiquities market of illicitly acquired anthropomorphic cruciform figures often manufactured from picrolite a soft blue green stone The excavations of the settlement and cemetery at Souskiou Laona reported on in this volume paint a very different picture of life on the island during the late 4th and early 3rd millennia BC Burial practices at other known sites are generally single inhumations in intramural pit graves only rarely equipped with artifacts At Souskiou multiple inhumations were interred in deep rock cut tombs clustered in extra mural cemeteries Although the sites were also subjected to extensive looting excavations have revealed complex multi stage burial practices with arrangements of disarticulated and articulated burials accompanied by a rich variety of grave goods Chief among these are a multitude of cruciform figurines and pendants This unusual treatment of the dead which has not been recorded elsewhere in Cyprus shifts the focus from the individual to the communal and provides evidence for significant changes involving kinship group links to common ancestors Excavations at the Laona settlement have furnished evidence suggesting that it functioned as a specialised center for the procurement and manufacture of picrolite during its early phase The subsequent decline of picrolite production and the earliest known occurrence of new types of ornaments such as faience beads and copper spiral pendants attest to important changes involving the transformation of personal and social identities during the first centuries of the 3rd millennium BC a topic that forms a central theme of this final report on the site Report of the Department of Antiquities, Cyprus Cyprus. Tmēma Archaïotētōn, 1994 New Directions in Cypriot Archaeology Catherine Kearns, Sturt W. Manning, 2019-04-15 New Directions in Cypriot Archaeology highlights current scholarship that employs a range of new techniques methods and theoretical approaches to questions related to the archaeology of the prehistoric and protohistoric periods on the island of Cyprus From revolutions in radiocarbon dating to the compositional analysis of ceramic remains to the digital applications used to study landscape histories at broad scales to rethinking human environment climate interrelationships the last few decades of research on Cyprus invite inquiry into the implications of these novel archaeological methods for the field and its future directions This edited volume gathers together a new generation of scholars who offer a revealing exploration of these insights as well as challenges to big questions in Cypriot archaeology such as the rise of social complexity urban settlement histories and changes in culture and identity These enduring topics provide the foundation for investigating the benefits and challenges of twenty first century methods and conceptual frameworks Divided into three main sections related to critical chronological transitions from earliest prehistory to the development of autonomous kingdoms during the Iron Age each contribution exposes and engages with a different advance in studies of material culture absolute dating paleoenvironmental analysis and spatial studies using geographic information systems From rethinking the chronological transitions of the Early Bronze Age to exploring regional craft production regimes of the Middle and Late Bronze Ages to locating Iron Age cemeteries through archival topographic maps these exciting and pioneering authors provide innovative ways of thinking about Cypriot archaeology and its relationship to the wider discipline
