Chance Development And Aging:

Chance, Development, and Aging Caleb Ellicott Finch, T. B. L. Kirkwood, 2000 Chance Development and Aging analyzes a subject that has been largely ignored until now the sources of individual variations in development and aging that cannot be attributed to genes or the external environment And by doing so this book develops new insight on aging and the individual Gathering and scrutinizing evidence from diverse sources the authors examine those differences in individuals that arise during development and those that might influence outcomes of aging Through their research they pose a new set of questions about the contribution of chance events during development and although chance variations during development are well known within the sub fields of developmental biology there has been little recognition of their affects on variations in adult form and function Here the authors confront this issue with a fascinating hypothesis chance variations in form and function arising through development affect individual base line functions and individual responses to the external environment and so modify outcomes of aging This book will undoubtedly benefit gerontologists geneticists reproductive biologists and physiologists and it will fascinate all those interested in the outcomes of aging

Social Networks and the Life Course Duane F. Alwin, Diane H. Felmler, Derek A. Kreager, 2018-03-06 This volume engages the interface between the development of human lives and social relational networks It focuses on the integration of two subfields of sociology social science the life course and social networks Research practitioners studying social networks typically focus on social structure or social organization ignoring the complex lives of the people in those networks At the same time life course researchers tend to focus on individual lives without necessarily studying the contexts of social relationships in which lives are embedded and linked to one another through social networks These patterns are changing and this book creates an audience of researchers who will better integrate the two subfields It covers the role of social networks across the life span from childhood and adolescence to midlife through old age

Menopause, Postmenopause and Ageing Margaret Rees, Tony Mander, Louis Keith, 2024-11-01 Women live longer than men and one third of the female population in Western societies is aged over 50 Postmenopausal health problems arising not only from ageing but also from oestrogen deficiency are therefore hot topics for medical professionals The third in a series published on behalf of the British Menopause Society this book is authored by an international team of specialists who work in women's health during and postmenopause and discusses how specific postmenopausal health problems are thought to arise and what are today's most promising treatment options The book is split into three sections Section 1 Determinants of disease Covers osteoporosis cardiovascular disease diabetes dementia breast gynaecological and bowel cancers Section 2 Common conditions Covers the pathology effects of ageing and oestrogen levels symptoms impact on women's lives who and how to investigate drug and non drug therapies in the following conditions dementia myocardial infarction stroke osteoporosis arthritis incontinence Section 3 Care of an ageing population Caring at home providing residential care Menopause postmenopause and Ageing provides a concise easy to read guide for the multidisciplinary team involved in the management of health problems after the menopause This book will be a valued resource for gynaecologists general physicians geriatricians oncologists cardiologists and orthopaedic surgeons general practitioners nurse specialists medical students and all of those involved in providing healthcare to the menopausal woman

Sex and Longevity: Sexuality, Gender, Reproduction, Parenthood J.-M. Robine,T.B.L. Kirkwood,M.

Allard,2012-12-06 A central concept in the evolutionary theory of senescence is the idea that ageing results from life history trade offs In particular the disposable soma theory suggests that longevity is determined through the setting of longevity assurance mechanisms so as to provide an optimal compromise between investments in somatic maintenance including stress resistance and in reproduction Comparative studies among mammalian species confirm that cells from long lived species appear to have a greater intrinsic capacity to withstand stresses than cells from short lived species Childbearing at older ages has become increasingly common in modern societies because of demographic changes medical progress and personal choice While the detrimental effects of late reproduction on infant mortality and genetic diseases have been well documented little is known about the possible postponed detrimental effects of late parenting Successful Ageing Clemens

Tesch-Römer,Hans-Werner Wahl,Suresh I. S. Rattan,Liat Ayalon,2022 This book argues that a narrow policy on successful ageing excludes a large portion of ageing individuals from the quest for a good life in old age It explores various models defining successful ageing and argues that successful ageing in guiding policy will profit by following a pluralistic and holistic view The Age of Chance Gerda Reith,2005-08-05 This text examines the enduring appeal of gambling in western culture exploring its complex relation to our underlying conceptions of the world and to the social and cultural backgrounds of those who fall under its spell A Life Course Approach to Healthy Ageing Diana Kuh,Rachel Cooper,Rebecca

Hardy,Marcus Richards,Yoav Ben-Shlomo,2014 This title investigates the lifetime determinants of healthy ageing and their implications for policy and practice bringing together authorities in ageing research and knowledge transfer from across the world Biology of Aging Robert Arking,2006-02-02 Robert Arking s Biology of Aging 3rd edition is an introductory text to the biology of aging which gives advanced undergraduate and graduate students a thorough review of the entire field His prior two editions have also served admirably as a reference text for clinicians and scientists This new edition captures the extraordinary recent advances in our knowledge of the ultimate and proximal mechanisms underlying the phenomenon of aging As a result six important conceptual changes are included here Clarified distinctions between the biological mechanisms involved in longevity determination and those involved in senescent processes A new conceptual framework around which we can organize all the new facts about aging This will assist readers to make sense of the information and use the data to form their own ideas Increased knowledge of aging cells has lead to new ideas on how a cell transits from a healthy state to a senescent state while still allowing for high levels of intra and inter specific variability Discussion of senescent mechanisms assists the reader to understand that aging is a non programmatic loss of function likely arising from the loss of regulatory signals and so is modifiable in the laboratory Because the standard evolutionary story does not fully explain the evolution of social organisms this edition also includes recent work dealing with intergenerational resource transfers Lastly if aging mechanisms are plastic then the demand to move these anti aging interventions into the human arena will inevitably grow A discussion of the biological and ethical arguments on both sides of the question frames the question in an appropriate manner The mass of data related to aging is summarized into fifteen focused chapters each dealing with some particular aspect of the problem The last two chapters integrate all this material into a coherent view of how the relevant biological processes change over the life span This view is expressed in two non technical figures you might say that the whole book exists to fully support Figs 9 4 14 9 whose meanings are elucidated as the reader progresses through the book

Handbook of Emotional Disorders in Later Life Ken Laidlaw, Bob Knight, 2008 Although the perceptions and realities of ageing have changed markedly over the last few decades for practitioners working with older people emotional problems remain a major factor of health and happiness in later life This handbook provides a concise authoritative and up to date guide to best practice in therapy for older people for a wide range of mental health professionals The editors bring together chapters by experienced trainers and clinicians that cover all the significant problems and issues in the assessment and treatment of emotional disorders in later life The introductory chapters examine the individual social cultural and physical experience of ageing and provide an essential background for a caring and professional understanding of related emotional disorders and their effective treatment Throughout the book key research and clinical experience is reported as underlying evidence based treatment but the emphasis is on practical guidance for assessment and interventions rather than detailed discussion of methodological issues With each chapter written by a specialist in their field a range of expertise is provided in a single source making this book an invaluable resource for anyone dealing with the mental health needs of older people

The Arc of Life Grazyna Jasienska, Diana S. Sherry, Donna J. Holmes, 2017-01-03 Given the rapidly developing area of evolutionary medicine and public health The Arc of Life examines ways in which research conducted by biological anthropologists can enrich our understanding of variation in human health outcomes The book aims not only to showcase the perspective that biological anthropologists bring to the burgeoning field of evolutionary medicine but to underscore the context of human life history especially the concept of evolutionary trade offs and the ensuing biological processes that can affect health status over the life course This dual emphasis on life history theory and life cycle biology will make for a valuable and unique yet complementary addition to books already available on the subject of evolution and health The book consolidates diverse lines of research within the field of biological anthropology stimulates new directions for future research and facilitates communication between subdisciplines of human biology operating at the forefront of evolutionary medicine

Understanding Human Development Ursula M. Staudinger, Ulman E.R. Lindenberger, 2012-12-06 K Warner Schaie I am pleased to write a foreword for this interesting volume particularly as over many years I have had the privilege of interacting with the editors and a majority of the contributors in various professional roles as a colleague mentor or research collaborator. The editors begin their introduction by asking why one would want to read yet another book on human development. They immediately answer their question by pointing out that many developmentally oriented texts and other treatises neglect the theoretical foundations of human development and fail to embed psychological constructs within the multidisciplinary context so essential to understanding development. This volume provides a positive remedy to past deficiencies in volumes on human development with a well organized structure that leads the reader from a general introduction through the basic processes to methodological issues and the relation of developmental constructs to social context and biological infrastructure. This approach does not surprise. After all, the editors and most of the contributors at one time or another had a connection to the Max Planck Institute of Human Development in Berlin, whether as students, junior scientists or senior visitors. That institute, under the leadership of Paul Baltes, has been instrumental in pursuing a systematic lifespan approach to the study of cognition and personality. Over the past two decades, it has influenced the careers of a generation of scientists who have advocated long term studies of human development in an interdisciplinary context.

Modulating Aging and Longevity S.I. Rattan, 2003-09-30. After decades of systematic collection of data describing age related changes in organisms, organs, tissues, cells and macromolecules, biogerontologists are now in a position to construct general principles of ageing and explore various possibilities of intervention using rational approaches. While not giving serious consideration to the claims made by charlatans, it cannot be ignored that several researchers are making genuine attempts to test and develop various means of intervention for the prevention and treatment of age related diseases, for regaining the functional abilities and for prolonging the lifespan of experimental organisms. This book provides the most up to date information and a critical evaluation of a variety of approaches being tried for modulating aging and longevity, including dietary supplementation with antioxidants, vitamins and hormones, genetic engineering, life style alterations and hormesis through mild stress. The goal of research on ageing is not to increase human longevity regardless of the consequences, but to increase active longevity free from disability and functional dependence. The Cambridge Handbook of Age and Ageing

Malcolm L. Johnson, Vern L. Bengtson, Peter G. Coleman, Thomas B. L. Kirkwood, 2005-12-01. The Cambridge Handbook of Age and Ageing, first published in 2005, is a guide to the body of knowledge, theory, policy and practice relevant to age researchers and gerontologists around the world. It contains almost 80 original chapters commissioned and written by the world's leading gerontologists from 16 countries and 5 continents. The broad focus of the book is on the behavioural and social sciences, but it also includes important contributions from the biological and medical sciences. It provides comprehensive, accessible and authoritative accounts of all the key topics in the field, ranging from theories of ageing to demography, physical aspects of ageing, mental processes and ageing, nursing and health care for older people, the social context of ageing, cross cultural perspectives, relationships, quality of life, gender and financial and policy provision. This handbook will be a must have resource for all researchers students and professionals with an interest in age and ageing
