Change at King's Cross Michael Hunter, Robert Thorne, 1990-01-01 An Economic History of London 1800-1914 Professor Michael Ball, David T Sunderland, 2001-04-26 This is the first comprehensive survey of the economic development of the world's first great industrial metropolis Modern theories of urban economics are used to shed new light on the process The East Coast Main Line 1939-1959 (Volume 2) Peter Tuffrey, B. W. L. Brooksbank, 2022-07-02 The first detailed study of this huge mainline through its operational history Features extended commentaries from the authors rich in detail Superbly illustrated with black and white photographs many never seen before In this second and final volume the whole of the East Coast Main Line between King's Cross and Edinburgh Waverley stations is examined closely with a particular emphasis on the ways and structures the line stations connections yards and other physical features Interposed are accounts of the traffic at the principal stations including connecting and branch line services with observations on changes over the period 1939 to 1959 Some emphasis is placed on freight traffic on account of its importance and perhaps its relative unfamiliarity to the reader The lines stations and many other elements are described as they were in August 1939 but as some plans on which they are based are dated before the late 1930s there may be marginal differences from the The Crisis of London Andy Thornley, 2003-09-02 London is in a mess This is evident from the precise layout in 1939 increasingly unpleasant experience of daily life in the capital from homelessness and unemployment to frustrating transport facilities and the general bad quality of the environment However it is not only citizens of London who are suffering but the business community as well London is having to face increasing competition from other European cities There is growing appreciation and debate about these problems from companies political parties local government and community organisations. The Crisis of London provides a solid analysis of what has gone wrong and explores policy directions that could make the city a more humane and livable place Beginning with a discussion of the basic elements of a home a job and a means of travelling around it becomes clear that even in these essential aspects London is failing A feature of the crisis is an increasingly divided city with conditions for the poorer citizens worsening all the time The authors consider the quality of the environment They examine the greening of the city and the need for sustainability the privatisation and dehumanisation of public spaces the fear experienced by women denying them full access to the capital the position of ethnic minorities and the perspectives of local communities Using the case studies of Docklands and Kings Cross the author's raise the crucial question of the government of the capital This review of the city concludes with an analysis of a potential vision for London involving both the creation of the necessary institutional structures and also the will to address the needs of all the capital s citizens The authors argue that a strategic approach is needed which accepts that the market alone cannot solve the problem Stronger public intervention and government action is necessary if London is to match the developments in other European cities Making Commercial Law through Practice 1830-1970 Ross Cranston, 2021-05-27 Draws on archival research to tell the story of the nineteenth and twentieth century development of commercial law through practice Railways and the Western European Capitals M. Transport in British Fiction A. Gavin, A. Humphries, 2016-01-12 Transport in British Fiction is the first essay collection devoted to transport and its various types horse train tram cab omnibus bicycle ship car air and space as represented in British fiction across a century of unprecedented technological change that was as destabilizing as it was progressive

Ottley's Bibliography of British Railway History. Second Supplement 12957-19605, 1998 Gardiner, 1990 The World's First Railway System Mark Casson, 2009-09-10 The British railway network was a monument to Victorian private enterprise Its masterpieces of civil engineering were emulated around the world But its performance was controversial praised for promoting a high density of lines it was also criticised for wasteful duplication of routes This is the first history of the British railway system written from a modern economic perspective It uses conterfactual analysis to construct an alternaive network to represent the most efficient alternative rail network that could have been constructed given what was known at the time the first time this has been done It reveals how weaknesses in regulation and defects in government policy resulted in enormous inefficiency in the Victorian system that Britain lives with today British railway companies developed into powerful regional monopolies which then contested each other s territories When denied access to existing lines in rival territories they built duplicate lines instead Plans for an integrated national system sponsored by William Gladstone were blocked by Members of Parliament because of a perceived conflict with the local interests they represented Each town wanted more railways than its neighbours and so too many lines were built The costs of these surplus lines led ultimately to higher fares and freight charges which impaired the performance of the economy. The book will be the definitive source of reference for those interested in the economic history of the British railway system It makes use of a major new historical source deposited railway plans integrates transport and local history through its regional analysis of the railway system and provides a comprehensive classified bibliography The Civil Engineering of Canals and Railways before 1850 Michael M. Chrimes, 2017-09-08 Between 1750 and 1850 the British landscape was transformed by a transport revolution which involved engineering works on a scale not seen in Europe since Roman times While the economic background of the canal and railway ages are relatively well known and many histories have been written about the locomotives which ran on the railways relatively little has been published on how the engineering works themselves were made possible This book brings together a series of papers which seek to answer the questions of how canals and railways were built how the engineers responsible organised the works how they were designed and what the role of the contractors was in the process Whitaker's Books in Print ,1998 Historical Dictionary of London Kenneth John Panton, 2001 Panton details London's growth from its foundation in Roman times to its modern place as one of the world's preeminent financial commercial and cultural capitals Entries cover general themes such as immigration housing street markets and health care as well as specific topics including individual historic buildings financial institutions museums transport modes major city center hotels and West End theaters Significant contributors to the city's government such as the legendary Dick Whittington also receive attention along with immigrant groups and major events such as the Great Fire the Great Plague the development of the subway system and the growth of the Stock Exchange In addition a chronology details major events there are lists of Lord Mayors and leading local government officials and a table outlines population growth over the last two hundred years Appendices contain borough council contact information and world wide web addresses which provide access to additional information through the Internet Cumulative Bibliography of Victorian Studies ,1970 Railway Stations Julian Ross, 2000 This work discusses the planning design and management of railway stations. It examines a range of stations Commercial aspects and matters of image and branding are explored alongside technical and operational issues British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 1995 Bibliography of Printed Works on London History to 1939 Heather Creaton, Tony Trowles, 1994 The history of London is so important in national and indeed international terms it seems extraordinary that this is the first general bibliography of the subject to appear It contains over 22 000 selected references to books and articles on the history of London from the Dark Ages to the beginning of the Second World War The whole of the former GLC area plus the City is covered Arrangement is by subject and there is a substantial analytical index Material for the bibliography was collected from specialist libraries all over London and beyond It is a starting point for any enguiry about London's development over the centuries whether from the academic historian the amateur or the general enquirer A supplement is planned to cover new material on the period The Illustrated London News ,1847
