A review of Uganda's national policies relevant to climate change adaptation and mitigation

Abwoli Y Banana, Patrick Byakagaba, Aaron JM Russell, Daniel Waiswa, Allan Bomuhangi, 2014-12-16 Climate change is expected to bring new challenges and opportunities for the livelihoods of rural communities in Uganda where more than 80% of the population depends on rain fed agriculture The purpose of this review was to analyze national policies on climate change adaptation agriculture forests management of forested and agroforested landscape ecosystems and their goods and services and the roles of stakeholders in the national arena Recognizing the role of forest cover in climate change mitigation and adaptation this review is based on stakeholder engagement and analysis of published literature on the policy institutional and socioeconomic drivers of forest cover change around Mount Elgon The bulk of Uganda s forests are on land under private ownership and deforestation has occurred mainly in such forests Several national laws and international conventions ratified by Uganda offer a framework under which forests are managed Management of protected forests is shared between central and local authorities Several natural resource policies are likely to have significant unintended impacts that may enable or limit the adaptation of stakeholders and ecosystems to climate change The current climate change policy which is an overarching document that addresses climate change in Uganda suggests that policy responses either sector specific or crosscutting in nature be harmonized in order to better address the challenges associated with climate change adaptation and mitigation

Can Democracy be Designed? Sunil Bastian, Robin Luckham, 2003-06 Constitution making for democracy has always been a highly political and contested process. It has never been more ambitious or more difficult than today as politicians and experts attempt to build democratic institutions that will foster peace and stability in countries torn by violent conflict. The extended investigation out of which this book has grown has ranged across three continents. It has examined such apparently intractable cases as Bosnia Herzegovina, Sri Lanka and Fiji as well as apparent success stories like South Africa, Ghana and Uganda. Three groups of questions are explored: How and by whom were democratic institutions re-designed? How have they functioned in practice? What has been the relationship between democratic institutions and democratic politics? How have they measured up to the pressures placed on them by ongoing violence, poverty, globalization and democratization itself? The authors, while regarding democracy as a general entitlement, refuse to subscribe to a triumphalist view which sees it as a universal panacea. Instead, they seek to understand how democratic institutions actually facilitate or sometimes fail to facilitate improved governance and the management of conflict in a variety of national settings. This thoughtful and empirical set of explorations is highly relevant to other societies wrestling with similar problems of institutional design in situations of democratic transition and/or deep-seated social conflict.

Pioneers of Change in Ethiopia Bahru Zewde, 2022-11-08 In this exciting new study, Bahru Zewde, one of the foremost historians of modern Ethiopia, has constructed a collective biography of a remarkable group of men and women in a formative period of their country's history. Ethiopia's political independence at the end of the nineteenth century put this new African state in a position to determine its own levels of engagement with the West. Ethiopians went to study in universities around the world. They returned with the skills of their education acquired in Europe and America and at home began to lay the foundations of a new literature and political philosophy. Pioneers of Change in Ethiopia describes the role of these men and women of ideas in the social and political transformation of the young nation and later in the administration of Haile Selassie.

The Right to Rule Bruce Gilley, 2009-03-03 Popular perceptions of a state's legitimacy are inextricably bound to its ability to rule. Vast military and material reserves cannot counter the power of a citizen's belief, and the more widespread the crisis of a state's legitimacy, the greater the threat to its stability. Even such established democracies as France and India are losing their moral claims over society, while such highly illiberal states as China and Iran enjoy strong showings of public support. Through a remarkable fusion of empirical research and theory, Bruce Gilley makes clear the link between political consent and political rule. Fixing a definition of legitimacy that is both general and particular, he is able to study the role of legitimacy as it has been maintained and lost in a diverse selection of societies. He begins by detailing the origins of state legitimacy and the methods governments have used to wield it best. He then considers the habits of less successful states, exploring how the process works across different styles of government. Gilley's unique approach merges a broad study of legitimacy and performance in seventy-two states with a detailed empirical analysis of the mechanisms of legitimation The results are tested on a case study of Uganda a country that after 1986 began to recover from decades of civil war Considering a range of explanations of other domestic and international phenomena as well Gilley ultimately argues that because of its evident real world importance legitimacy should occupy a central place in political analysis     Truth Commissions and Transitional Societies Eric Wiebelhaus-Brahm,2010-01-05 This book uses a multi method approach to examine the impact of truth commissions on subsequent human rights protection and democratic practice and features cross national case studies on South Africa El Salvador Chile and Uganda     Dark Horizons Tom Moylan,Raffaella Baccolini,2003 Dark Horizons presents new essays on the dystopian turn of late twentieth century science fiction Leading scholars discuss major dystopian traditions including cyberpunk and feminist utopian dystopian narratives as seen in works such as Octavia Butler s novel Xenogenesis and the film Fight Club These essays draw out the ways in which contemporary science fiction literature and film has served as a prophetic vehicle for writers with ethical and political concerns     Meaning and Medicine Hilde Lindemann Nelson,1999-07-22 A chief aim of this resource is to rekindle interest in seeing health care not solely as a set of practices so problematic as to require ethical analysis by philosophers and other scholars but as a field whose scrutiny is richly rewarding for the traditional concerns of philosophy     Oversight of NIH and FDA United States. Congress. House. Committee on Government Reform and Oversight. Subcommittee on Human Resources,1997     Democratization and Competitive Authoritarianism in Africa Matthijs Bogaards,Sebastian Elischer,2016-02-26 The special issue revisits Levitsky and Way s seminal study on Competitive Authoritarianism 2010 The contributions by North American European and African scholars deepen our understanding of the emergence trajectories and outcomes of hybrid regimes across the African continent     Postcolonial Subjectivities in Africa Pnina Werbner,2002 This is the third volume in a trilogy on identity memory and subjectivity Contributors to the book share an ambition to combine personal political and existential dimensions in detailed evocations of the ambitions and vulnerabilities of contemporary Africans Their essays aim to forge alliances between patient local scholarship and adventurous theoretical speculation that should inspire new research and caution against bland generalizations about African marginality

Eroding Local Capacity Monica Kathina Juma,Astri Suhrke,2002 Eroding Local Capacity is a critical examination of the interplay between international and local actors operating in the humanitarian arena in Africa All sides emphasise the need to build local capacity for humanitarian action yet the results have not been substantial Even long term semi permanent emergencies have generated little local capacity to assist and protect the victims of violence displacement and related deprivations In some cases whatever local capacity did exist has been overwhelmed by the international aid presence Why is this so What is the case for a more even division of labour between North and South in this area and why is it so difficult to bring about The book focuses on cases from East Africa and the Horn It considers institutional capacity in the public and private sector as well as legal and social norms of humanitarian action The authors are African and Nordic scholars who worked together on the NORAD supported project over a 3 year period Preliminary conclusions were discussed at seminars organized by the Centre for Foreign Relations Dar es Salaam the School of Government at the University of the Western Cape Cape Town and the Chr Michelsen Institute Bergen
