Changing Spaces of Education Rachel Brooks, Alison Fuller, Johanna Waters, 2012-05-16 In today's modern climate education and learning take place in multiple and diverse spaces Increasingly these spaces are both physical and virtual in nature Access to and use of information and communication technologies and the emergence of knowledge based economies necessitate an understanding of the plurality of spaces such as homes workplaces international space and cyberspace in which learning can take place The spaces of policy making with respect to education are also being transformed away from traditional centres of policy formation towards the incorporation of a wider range of actors and sites These changes coincide with a more general interest in space and spatial theory across the social sciences where notions of simultaneity and diversity replace more modernist conceptions of linear progress and development through time This volume proffers a unique perspective on the transformation of education in the 21st century by bringing together leading researchers in education sociology and geography to address directly questions of space in relation to education and learning This collection of essays examines the changing and diverse spaces and concepts of education occurring simultaneously at different scales and in different parts of the world explores where education and learning take place discusses how spaces of education vary at different stages compulsory schooling tertiary and higher education adult education and workplace learning inspects the ways in which the meanings attached to education and learning change in different national and regional contexts Changing Spaces of Education is an important and timely contribution to a growing area of concern within the social sciences and amongst practitioners and policy makers reflecting an urgent need to understand the ways in which both education and learning are being reconfigured not just nationally but also internationally and transnationally It is essential reading for final year undergraduates postgraduates and researchers in geography sociology education and policy studies with an aim too of informing policy and practice in this area

Changing Places? Richard Edwards, 2002-09-10 Flexibility has become a central concept in much policy and academic debate Individuals organizations and societies are all required to become more flexible so that they can participate in the ongoing processes of change involved in lifelong learning This book explores how the notion of a learning society has developed over recent years the changes that have given rise to the requirement for flexibility and the changed discourses and practices that have emerged in the education and training of adults With the growth in interest in adults as learners primarily to support economic competitiveness the closed field of adult education has now been displaced by a more open discourse of lifelong learning This involves not only changing practices such as moving towards open and distance based learning but also changing workplace identities Learning settings are therefore changing places in a number of senses they are places in which people change they are subject to change and they are changing to include the home and workplace as well as more formal settings This book takes an unusually critical standpoint it challenges contemporary trends explores the uncertainties and ambivalences of the processes of change and is suggestive of different forms of engagement with them It will prove an important text for policy makers workplace trainers and those working in the field of adult further and higher education Richard Edwards is currently a Senior Lecturer in post compulsory education at the Open University chronology and sustained interpretation of Dingus's work with its emphasis on transformation and on translating information across visual borders Landscape is always with us deceptively simple yet capable of providing something much more By examining the rich variety of Dingus's work and reflecting on the evolution of ideas that lie behind it Shifting Views and Changing Places invites readers to critically examine the pursuit of seeing Changing Places David Franzetta, 2012-10-02

The 1975 publication of Robin Tolmach Lakoff's Language and Woman's Place is widely recognized as having inaugurated feminist research on the relationship between language and gender touching off a remarkable response among language scholars feminists and general readers For the past thirty years scholars of language and gender have been debating and developing Lakoff's initial observations Arguing that language is fundamental to gender inequality Lakoff pointed to two areas in which inequalities can be found Language used about women such as the asymmetries between seemingly parallel terms like master and mistress and language used by women which places women in a double bind between being appropriately feminine and being fully human Lakoff's central argument that women's language expresses powerlessness triggered a controversy that continues to this day The revised and expanded edition presents the full text of the original first edition along with an introduction and annotations by Lakoff in which she reflects on the text a quarter century later and expands on some of the most widely discussed issues it raises The volume also brings together commentaries from twenty six leading scholars of language gender and sexuality within linguistics anthropology modern languages education information sciences and other disciplines The commentaries discuss the book s contribution to feminist research on language and explore its ongoing relevance for scholarship in the field This new edition of Language and Woman s Place not only makes available once again the pioneering text of feminist linguistics just as important it places the text in the context of contemporary feminist and gender theory for a new generation of readers WJEC/Eduqas AS/A-level

Communities and Local G, 2008-10-22 Public toilets matter to everybody regardless of their age class ethnic origin gender mental ability or physical ability and they are even more important to certain sections of society including older people disabled people women families with young children and tourists While the Public Health Act 1936 gives local authorities a power to provide public toilets it imposes no duty to do so and this lack of compulsion together with a perception of nuisance associated with them has arguably resulted in a steady decline in the provision of public toilets in recent years This decline needs to be addressed The Committee supports the Government s Strategic Guide on the provision of public toilets Improving Public Access to Better Quality Toilets 2008 which highlighted existing powers at the disposal of local authorities that can be used to improve public access to toilets Some local authorities have developed strategies for the provision of clean safe accessible toilets including partnerships with local businesses such as pubs cafes and shops that make their own toilets available to non customers Other local authorities are less committed which has led to great disparities between different towns and regions Some local authorities may have used the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 as an excuse to close public toilets rather than bring them up to the standards required by the Act This report seeks to consider the evidence and to produce simple and practical recommendations to improve this important social amenity The overriding recommendation is that the Government imposes a duty on local authorities to develop a public toilet strategy which should involve consultation with the local community for their own area A-level Geography Topic Master: Changing Places Simon Oakes, 2018-10-29 Exam board AQA Edexcel OCR WJEC Eduqas Level A level Subject Geography First teaching September 2016 First exams Summer 2017 AS Summer 2018 A level Master the in depth knowledge and higher level skills

The Choreography of Environments Janice Ross, 2025-01-28 The Choreography of Environments How the Anna and Lawrence Halprin Home Transformed Contemporary Dance and Urban Design explores how objects and the domestic spaces seep into the aesthetic consciousness of movement based artists like dancers and urban designers significantly shaping their approach to movement invention and choreography If these objects and spaces happen to have been designed by a leading modernist architect and landscape designer working with the dancer then the aesthetic imprint is amplified Dance innovation becomes pressed into dialogue with spatial environmental and urban agendas The Choreography of Environments builds on this premise to consider the use of ordinary objects from a private residence as lenses into viewing dance innovation Author Janice Ross posits the Halprins 1950s iconic mid century modern home and expansive outdoor dance deck as a hidden archive She explores four objects from their house and gardens staircase deck chair and window to trace how despite the conservative postwar climate this intimate domestic space became a radical template reshaping postmodern dance invention and its expansion into civic social and environmental engagement in the twentieth and twenty first centuries The work that happened in this white middle class Jewish American home in a San Francisco suburb paved the way for changes that continue to resonate today across contemporary dance performance and urban design These include defamiliarizing urban landscape and gardens as cloistered theaters where civic identities are rehearsed orchestrating collective problem solving and invention normalizing the nude body privileging a utilitarian and responsive rather than sentimental approach to dance in the environment and re positioning choreography as a vital medium for urban problem solving These four representative objects in the Halprin home are also used to trace the burgeoning of dance as a forceful medium for civic engagement and its valorization of the ordinary in movement As a whole this book shows how dance architecture and landscape design would have a profound confluence through these shared domestic spaces and objects of the Halprins lives Changing Places

Carol Tropp Schreiber,1979 What happens when men enter positions traditionally thought to be the domain of women such as clerical work and women enter positions traditionally thought to be the domain of men such as craft work These were the basic questions confronting Schreiber in this thoughtful analysis of a set of workers too seldom included in the scientific and popular literature on changing sex roles Instead of focusing on the more glamorous or visible occupations such as the professions of airline pilots and flight attendants Schreiber examined industrial and lower level clerical workers This is a useful study The research strategy and methodology are carefully explained and can serve as a model for others The pitfalls that everyone confronts are acknowledged and the doubts that all researchers face are described The study contains careful statistical analyses and excellent descriptive data Richard H Hall Industrial and Labor Relations Review
