Climate Change and Social Ecology Stephen M. Wheeler, 2012 Industrial cultures have proved unable to confront the issues underlying the climate problem such as overconsumption overpopulation inequity and dysfunctional political systems Political and social obstacles have prevented the adoption of improved technologies and these would provide only a partial solution in any case Climate Change and Social Ecology takes a new approach to the climate crisis arguing that climate change is a challenge of rapid social evolution In order to address this impending catastrophe and bring about more sustainable development this book argues that we must focus on improving social ecologies our values mind sets and organizations The text presents a compelling vision of how to help social ecologies evolve toward sustainability and explores the social transformations needed to deal with the climate crisis in the long term It reviews the climate change strategies considered to date presents a detailed vision of a future sustainable society and analyzes how this vision might be realized through more conscious public nurturing of our social ecologies This interdisciplinary volume provides a compelling rethink of the climate crisis Authoritative and accessible it will be of great interest to anyone concerned about climate change and sustainability challenges and is essential reading for students professionals and general readers alike Einstein

Eco-Realism for Turbulent Times Adrian Ivakhiv, 2018 A spectre is haunting humanity the spectre of a reality that will outwit and in the end bury us The Anthropocene or The Human Era is an attempt to name our geological fate that we will one day disappear into the layer cake of Earth's geology while highlighting humanity in the starring role of today's Earthly drama In Shadowing the Anthropocene Adrian Ivakhiv proposes an ecological realism that takes as its starting point humanity's eventual demise The only question for a realist today he suggests is what to do now and what quality of compost to leave behind with our burial The book engages with the challenges of the Anthropocene and with a series of philosophical efforts to address them including those of Slavoj Žižek and Charles Taylor Graham Harman and Timothy Morton Isabelle Stengers and Bruno Latour and William Connolly and Jane Bennett Along the way there are volcanic eruptions and revolutions ant cities and dog parks data clouds and space junk pagan gods and sacrificial altars dark flow souls of things and jazz Ivakhiv draws from centuries old process relational thinking that hearkens back to Daoist and Buddhist sages but gains incisive re invigoration in the philosophies of Charles Sanders Peirce and Alfred North Whitehead He translates those insights into practices of engaged Anthropocenic bodymindfulness aesthetic ethical and ecological practices for living in the shadow of the Anthropocene

Radical Ecology in the Face of the Anthropocene Extinction John A. Smith, Anna Wilson, 2024-06-14 This book has two interlocking ambitions The first is to steer what we purposefully call the idioms of critical philosophy towards a more ecologically informed paradigm The second is to recognise that what has rightly come to be called The Anthropocene extinction is not and cannot be treated as simply a scientific fact but rather a socio political and ecological dispute of immense complexity We start with an exploration of the consequences of a critical tradition which under the name Enlightenment has placed humanity at its centre and chance as its most general and problematic characteristic We argue that this leads to a schizophrenic relationship between radical critique and science which can be avoided if we take the implications of biosemiotics seriously and develop a new ecologically informed social science We argue that in practice this means that for science to be practical in addressing the Anthropocene extinction we have to recognise that it operates in a historically emergent highly differentiated technopolitical ecology Science as it is currently commonly understood and used is not ecological enough This book will interest social scientists interested in not only describing and critiquing but also understanding and responding to the complex problems facing humanity scientists wanting to make sense of social phenomena those educating the next generation of social scientists and climate activists and policy makers Chrysalis

The Foundations of Evolutionary Institutional Economics Manuel Scholz-Wäckerle, 2013-08-15 Generic institutionalism offers a new perspective on institutional economic change within an evolutionary framework The institutional landscape shapes the social fabric and economic organization in manifold ways The book elaborates on the ubiquity of such institutional forms with regards to their emergence durability and exit in social agency structure relations Thereby institutions are considered as social learning environments changing the knowledge base of the economy along generic rule sets in non nomological ways from within Specific attention is given to a theoretical structuring of the topic in ontology heuristics and methodology Part I introduces a generic naturalistic ontology by comparing prevalent ontological claims in evolutionary economics and preparing them for a broader pluralist and interdisciplinary discourse Part II reconsiders these ontological claims and confronts it with prevalent heuristics conceptualizations and projections of institutional change In this respect the book revisits the institutional economic thought of Thorstein Veblen Friedrich August von Hayek Joseph Alois Schumpeter and Pierre Bourdieu A synthesis is suggested in an application of the generic rule based approach Part III discusses the implementation of rule based bottom up models of institutional change and provides a basic prototype agent based computational simulation The evolution of power relations plays an important role in the programming of real life communication networks This notion characterizes the discussed policy realms Part IV of ecological and financial sustainability as tremendously complex areas of institutional change in political economy leading to the concluding topic of democracy in practice The novelty of this approach is given by its modular theoretical structure It turns out that institutional change is carried substantially by affective social orders in contrast to rational orders as communicated in orthodox economic realms The characteristics of affective orders are derived theoretically from intersections between ontology and heuristics where interdependencies between instinct cognition rationality reason social practice habit routine or disposition are essential for the embodiment of knowledge This kind of research indicates new generic directions to study social learning in
