A Grammar of Tariana, from Northwest Amazonia Aleksandra IľUľr'evna Aľkhenval'd, 2003-08-07 This is a comprehensive reference grammar of Tariana an endangered Arawak language from a remote region in the northwest Amazonian jungle Its speakers traditionally marry someone speaking a different language and as a result most people are fluent in five or six languages Because of this rampant multilingualism Tariana combines a number of features inherited from the protolanguage with properties diffused from neighbouring but unrelated Tucanoan languages Typologically unusual features of the language include an array of classifiers independent of genders complex serial verbs case marking depending on the topicality of a noun and double marking of case and of number Tariana has obligatory evidentiality every sentence contains a special element indicating whether the information was seen heard or inferred by the speaker or whether the speaker acquired it from somebody else This grammar will be a valuable source book for linguists and others interested in natural languages

Worrorra Mark Clendon, 2014-05-12 The Kimberley Arafuran language Worrorra was spoken traditionally on the remote coastline and precipitously beautiful hinterland between the Walcott Inlet and the Prince Regent River The language described here is that attested by its last full speakers Patsy Lulpunda Amy Peters and Daisy Utemorra Patsy Lulpunda was a child when Europeans first entered her country in 1912 and Amy Peters and Daisy Utemorra both grew up on the Kunmunya mission This comprehensive and detailed grammar provides as well an historical and cultural context for a society now drastically altered In the 1950s Worrorra people left their traditional land and from the 1970s the number of people speaking Worrorra as their first language declined dramatically Worrorra is a highly polysynthetic language characterised by overarching concord and a high degree of morphological fusion Verbal semantics involve a voicing opposition and an extensive system of evidentiality marking Worrorra has elaborate systems of pragmatic reference a derivational morphology that projects agreement class concord across most lexical categories and complex predicates that incorporate one verb within another Nouns are distributed among five genders the intensional properties of which define dynamic oppositions between men and women on the one hand and earth and sky on the other This volume will be of interest to morphologists syntacticians semanticists anthropologists typologists and readers interested in Australian language and culture generally Latinitatis rationes Paolo Poccetti, 2016-12-05 This volume assembles 50 contributions presented at the XVII International Colloquium on Latin Linguistics They embrace essential topics of Latin linguistics with different theoretical and methodological approaches phonetics syntax etymology and semantics pragmatics and textual analysis It is a useful resource for the study of comparative and general linguistics not only for linguists but also for scholars of classical philology Salish Applicatives Kaoru Kiyosawa, Donna Gerdts, 2010-06-14 This book offers a comprehensive view of the morphology syntax and semantics of applicatives in Salish a language family of northwestern North America Applicative constructions found in many polysynthetic languages cast a semantically peripheral noun phrase as direct object Drawing upon primary and secondary data from twenty Salish languages the authors catalog the relationship between the form and function of seventeen applicative suffixes The semantic role of the associated noun phrase and the verb class of the base are crucial factors in differentiating applicatives Salish languages have two types of applicatives relationals are formed on intransitive bases and redirectives on transitive ones The historical development and discourse function of Salish applicatives are elucidated and placed in typological perspective The Grammar of Causation and Interpersonal Manipulation Masayoshi Shibatani, 2002 This volume presents fifteen original papers dealing with various aspects of causative constructions ranging from morphology to semantics with emphasis on language data from Central and South America Informed by a better understanding of how different constructions are positioned both synchronically e g on a semantic map and diachronically e g through grammaticalization processes the volume affords a comprehensive up to date perspective on the perennial issues in the grammar of causation such as the distribution of competing causative morphemes the meaning distinctions among them and the overall form meaning correlation Morphosyntactic interactions of causatives with other phenomena such as incorporation and applicativization receive focused attention as such basic issues as the semantic distinction between direct and indirect causation and the typology of causative constructions

Aspect in Burmese Nicoletta Romeo, 2008 The book presents an overview of the aspectual system of Burmese and it focuses on the analysis and description of the meaning and function of some aspectual markers which are among the most commonly used in the language The analysis highlights a few important facts Firstly these markers which typically follow the main verb within the verbal complex derive from lexical verbs which are still in use in Burmese This is an important descriptive factor since the function of these markers can only be fully understood by looking at the interplay between the semantics of their lexical sources and the semantics of the verbs they modify Secondly it is the semantics of the aspectual markers that determines both their order vis vis the main verb and their order vis vis the other markers within the verbal complex The interplay between the semantics and the syntax of these markers is analysed by adopting Role and Reference Grammar

The Linguistics of Eating and Drinking John Newman, 2009 This volume reviews a range of fascinating linguistic facts about ingestive predicates in the world's languages The highly multifaceted nature of eat and drink events gives rise to interesting clausal properties of these predicates such as the atypicality of transitive constructions involving eat and drink in some languages The two verbs are also sources for a large number of figurative uses across languages with meanings such as destroy and savour as well as participating in a great variety of idioms which can be quite opaque semantically Grammaticalized extensions of these predicates also occur such as the quantificational use of Hausa shaa drink meaning roughly do X frequently regularly Specialists discuss details of the use of these verbs in a variety of languages and language families Australian languages Papuan languages Athapaskan languages Japanese Korean Hausa Amharic Hindi Urdu and Marathi
