Cinema in a Democratic South Africa Lucia Saks,2010-07-19 Lucia Saks uses South African cinema as a lens through which to view cultural changes resulting from the end of apartheid in 1994 She examines how media transformed the meaning of race and nation during this period and argues that as apartheid was disbanded and new racial constructs allowed South Africa quickly sought a new mode of representation as a way to distance itself from the violence and racism of the half century prior as well as to demonstrate stability amid social disruption This rapid search for a new way to identify and portray itself is what Saks refers to as the race for representation She contextualizes this race in terms of South African history the media apartheid sexuality the economy community early South African cinema and finally speculates about the future of counter cinema in present day South Africa

Melancholia of Freedom Thomas Blom Hansen,2012-07-22 The end of apartheid in 1994 signaled a moment of freedom and a promise of a nonracial future With this promise came an injunction define yourself as you truly are as an individual and as a community Almost two decades later it is clear that it was less the prospect of that future than the habits and horizons of anxious life in racially defined enclaves that determined postapartheid freedom In this book Thomas Blom Hansen offers an in depth analysis of the uncertainties dreams and anxieties that have accompanied postapartheid freedoms in Chatsworth a formerly Indian township in Durban Exploring five decades of township life Hansen tells the stories of ordinary Indians whose lives were racialized and framed by the township and how these residents domesticated and inhabited this urban space and its institutions during apartheid and after Hansen demonstrates the complex and ambivalent nature of ordinary township life While the ideology of apartheid was widely rejected its practical institutions from urban planning to houses schools and religious spaces were embraced in order to remake the community Hansen describes how the racial segmentation of South African society still informs daily life notions of race personhood morality and religious ethics He also demonstrates the force of global religious imaginings that promise a universal and inclusive community amid uncertain lives and futures in the postapartheid nation state
