The Psychology of Teaching Physical Education Bonnie Blankenship, 2017-06-30 This book weaves together theory, research, and practical information related to the psychological aspects of physical education. Unlike other exercise sport psychology books on the market, The Psychology of Teaching Physical Education is written especially for future and practicing physical educators and focuses on the psychological principles and strategies that are most relevant to them. The book covers the important topics of motivation, reinforcement, feedback, modeling, prosocial behaviors, moral development, and self-perception. In each chapter, narratives about real practicing teachers show how they apply the principles and theories of psychology to physical education and particularly to actual situations that readers are likely to encounter professionally. Each chapter contains three main sections following an opening scenario in which Blankenship captures the reader's attention with a real-life problem. The author then 1) highlights theories related to the subject matter of the chapter, 2) summarizes the research that has been conducted on the theories and the chapter topic, and 3) gives examples of practical applications of the theory and research to physical education. Throughout the chapter, as the theory, research, and application of the topic are discussed, Blankenship presents possible solutions to the challenge presented in the chapter opening vignette. The classroom applications and real-world examples are relevant to many different physical education settings, including those at the elementary, middle, and high school levels in both urban and rural schools representing various geographical regions of the country. These examples bring the theories to life and help readers envision how their own classes will benefit as they apply what they've learned about the psychology of teaching physical education.

Key Features of the Book A theory-to-research-to-practice approach. An author whose background in both sport psychology and physical education makes her uniquely qualified to write this book. Chapter-ending application exercises that encourage readers to go beyond rote memorization of concepts and principles to apply what they learned in various specific examples. Sample instructional models and guidelines to enable readers to incorporate concepts discussed in the chapter into their own classes. A comprehensive glossary.

Chougule, 2021-04-15 1 1 NEED AND BACKGROUND 1 1 1 PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORTS WITHIN SOCIETY Man is a social animal both by need and necessity Social institutions are born with cultural influences Social institution is one of the products of culture Institutions are necessary to maintain social order and control human behavior Social institutions are born to satisfy human needs All the needs and desires of the individuals and human beings are met by social institutions Social institutions are simply social habits For example the habits of shaving in the morning uttering prayers before going to bed Habits are systematized instituted or established by groups Institutions may also be defined as habitual ways of living together which have been sanctioned systematized and established by the authority of communities An institution therefore may be type of group In this sense the family is an institution and if it conducts itself in institutionalized ways Robert Bierstead considers that institutions as an organized way of doing something Institutions are socially important because they transfer cultural elements from one generation to another For example the father of the family teaches his sons and daughters about the family the way of life economic way of life and religious way of life A social institution introduces unity in human behavior A social institution also controls the conduct and character of man in the society Modern life is not as simple as that of ancient times It is complex The complexity has been produced by our growing and different needs The needs are self preservation Self perpetuation and self expression These needs are met only by social institutions Social institutions represent the social structure of the society We can conclude that the social relationships include common values and procedure to achieve basic needs of society Common value means shared ideas and goals procedure means the accepted standardized norms and the social relationships include the behavior of the people A Youb 2008
