Recent Developments in Alcoholism Marc Galanter, 2013-11-21 From the President of the Research Society on Alcoholism In recent years the alcohol research field has matured and is attracting a substantial number of eager and technically sophisticated researchers There is a feeling of excitement and premonitions of breakthroughs as more and more of alcohol's actions are being detailed I however have at times been sobered by the perception that the lure of parsimonious explanations and the appeal of studying easily demonstrable effects obscure the critical issues regarding alcohol abuse and alcoholism Central questions regarding 1 the reinforcing properties of ethanol and other factors responsible for inappropriate consumption of alcohol 2 the heterogeneous characteristics both biologic and sociologic of the alcoholic population and 3 the differential predisposition of individuals to alcohol induced medical problems needed to be vigorously pursued Researchers who used animals as models for the human condition needed to become more intimately aware of the variety of factors that are of importance in the development of alcoholism in an individual On the other hand researchers studying humans needed to attempt to more clearly define and categorize diagnostic criteria and characteristics of various alcoholic populations Such categorization and continued characterization of alcoholism allows not only for a framework of concepts within which proper animal models for studies of biologic mechanisms can be developed but also allows for consideration of the most apt treatment approaches Dual Addiction Mary Jeanne Kreek, Barry Stimmel, 1984 A highly readable and informative book that examines the neglected areas of polydrug use and alcoholism
