Drugs And Decisionmaking In The European Union:

Drugs and Decision-making in the European Union Tim Boekhout van Solinge, 2002 Drugs and Decision-making in the European Union Tim Boekhout van Solinge, 2002 Drugs are a perennial topic within the institutions of the European Union the Commission Council and Parliament The drug problem is also regularly tabled on the agenda of the European Council the biannual summit of the government leaders of the fifteen member states The EU systematically brings drug related issues into virtually all of its political dialogues with Third World countries and regional organizations It even stresses the importance of anti drug measures as part of trade agreements and development cooperation By such means the European Union has become an important player in the world of international drug control This book gives an overview of the European Union's anti drug measures and focuses on its decision making process It looks at why drugs have acquired a prominent position on the European political agenda and identifies the political function they serve in terms of domestic drug policy and international relations This study shows that instead of solving the drug problem the European Union's bureaucracy actually helps to keep it alive and well Tim Boekhout van Solinge is a researcher at the Centre for Drug Research of the University of Amsterdam EU Regulatory Decision Making and the Role of the United States Oliver Ziegler, 2012-09-05 Oliver Ziegler raises the question of what role economic interests of the United States play in the regulatory decision making process of the European Union Critics often assume that US dominance in the world economy fueled by a powerful business elite has significantly affected EU regulations at the expense of environmental and consumer protection standards The author falsifies this proposition He shows first that the EU often adopts regulations against the explicit opposition of the US thereby ignoring the principles of transatlantic regulatory cooperation Second he demonstrates that business interests in the EU are usually not homogenous and often come second to environmental and consumer concerns In addition the author shows the increasing role of the European Parliament in EU regulatory decision making Anti-Drugs Policies of the European Union M. Elvins, 2003-08-06 Martin Elvins book is the first to trace the evolution of anti drugs policies at European Union level from the late 1960s to the present Phases of drug policy development key policy actors and institutions are described with particular reference to the influence of transnational networks of expertise Policy development is placed in the context of both European integration and a broad harmonization of international policies against drug trafficking Concerns are also raised about secretive and anti democratic features on intergovernmental EU decision making Policies and Strategies to Combat Drugs in Europe Georges Estievenart, 2023-08-28 This volume arose from a European Scientific Seminar on Strategies and Policies to Combat Drugs which was organized by the Commission of the European Communities at the European University Institute in Florence in December 1993 The significance of the seminar lay in the manner in which it sought to address the full range of issues associated with the drug problem at international national and local level Equally important was its success in attracting participants from a number of different disciplines scientific experts national and EU administrators working in the drugs field and members of the European Parliament That provided for a lively and wide ranging exchange of views and ideas which is reflected in the contributions and conclusions contained in this publication which comprises varied contributions and approaches to drug policies at international European national and local level It also focuses on the possibilities of a comprehensive Drug Strategy within the framework of the European Union

Cocaine Trafficking in Latin America Sayaka Fukumi,2016-05-23 The post Cold War world has seen the emergence of new kinds of security threats Whilst traditionally security threats were perceived of in terms of military threats against a state non traditional security threats are those that pose a threat to various internal competencies of the state and its identity both home and abroad The European Union and the United States have identified Latin American cocaine trafficking as a security threat but their policy responses to it have differed This book examines the ways in which the EU and the US have conceptualized this threat Furthermore it explores the impact of cocaine trafficking on four state functions economic political public order and diplomatic in order to explain why it has become securitized Appealing to a variety of university courses this book is especially relevant to security studies and European and US policy analysis as well as criminology and sociology

Decision-making in the European Community Emil Joseph Kirchner,1992 In this first major assessment of EC decision making at the highest levels for ten years Emil Kirchner examines the Council Presidency s role in European integration The author demonstrates how the EC Council Presidency plays a crucial role in the integration process enhanced by the Single European Act and the two Intergovernmental Conferences on EMU and Political Union He evaluates the balance and distribution of power between national and Community actors and asks whether the Council Presidency is primarily an instrument to maintain national control of EC decision making rather than a device for promoting integration He sheds light on the negotiations which led to the SEA and the two Intergovernmental Conferences and argues for a new interpretation of the relationship between the EC and its constituent states EC decision making is not characterised by a transfer of powers from the national to the EC level but by a sharing of competences between national and Community institutions and a pooling of sovereignties among member governments that is analogous to co operative federalism Decision making in the European Community will be vital reading for political scientists and students interested in the EC and for all those seeking to understand European integration potentially the 1990s most important political development
