Drinking from the Sacred Well John Matthews,1998-01-01 Recreates the mystical journeys of twelve Celtic saints including St Brendand of Clonfert St Kevin of Glendalough St Brighid of Kildare St Columba of Iona and St Patrick of Armagh

Drinking from the Sacred Well John Matthews,1998-11-04 Since ancient times the Celts have followed a path of total involvement with the natural world a love of the earth the pattern of seasons and the magical presence of animals Their quest for truth and sense of wonder in the beauty and power of the landscape expressed today in immensely popular Celtic music and poetry is deeply rooted in their early spiritual practices In Drinking From the Sacred Well renowned Celtic scholar John Matthews recreates the mystical journeys of twelve Celtic saints capturing the wisdom and insight of these extraordinary men and women who lived from the third to the seventh centuries A D In carrying the faith of Christianity to the people of Britain and Ireland they adapted the earthly wisdom of the Druids and other Celtic mystics The result was a rare combination of Christianity and Paganism that left a powerful legacy that lasts to this day Step with St Brendan onto the deck of a ship headed for a strange and wondrous country experience the hospitality of the spirit with St Senan discover the feminine voice in your creative life with St Bridget or learn from St Kentigern that a love of nature can heal the deepest wounds You will recognize in these lyric stories your own journey and the questions that both challenge and fuel your ongoing spiritual quest Like Joseph Campbell s Myths to Live By these tales along with Matthews incisive commentary and suggested meditation points will inspire us all to live more courageous and spirited lives

Two Minds Roger Frantz,2006-07-02 As everyone knows intuition is warm and fuzzy qualitative not measurable Economics on the other hand is quantitative and if it is not a hard science at least it is the queen of the social sciences It is therefore intuitively obvious that intuition and economics are as if oil and water The problem is what is intuitively obvious is not always correct And there are two major reasons why intuition and economics are not like oil and water First economics concerns itself with decision making and decisions are made in the brain The human brain is the size of a grapefruit weighing three pounds with approximately 180 billion neurons each physically independent but interacting with the other neurons What we call intuition is like decision making a natural information processing function of the brain Second despite the current emphasis on quantitative analysis and deductive logic there is a rich history of economists speaking about intuition First the human brain specifically the neocortex has a left and right hemisphere The specialized analytical style of the left hemisphere and the specialized intuitive style of the right hemispheres complement each other
