Introduction

Education is usually the key element a government is supposed to put more effort into so as to bring development in various issues of life. For this case, the ministry concerned has a very hard task of ensuring there are no critical issues that are left unsolved that relate to education, failure to which will affect the performance of students in schools which in turn affect the economic growth of the country (Provenzo, 2006).

Drug Abuse and Alcoholism

Drug abuse and alcoholism among the students are one critical issue in education that is usually overlooked when it comes to tackling critical issues in education. Many students in both public and private schools abuse drugs and take alcohol, and as a result, performance in school has significantly deteriorated.

Many students get involved in drug abuse and alcoholism in schools as a result of peer influence. As a result, they become drug addicts, and for this case, they lose concentration in class. When students are under the control of drugs, understanding any concept in class becomes a problem since their mind is just thinking about their next drug-taking session in class.

Students who take drugs tend to have deviant behaviors such as bullying others; they become violent and, at a time, even stealing. Since they purchase drugs out of the little pocket money they are issued to them by the parent, they tend to source more money by stealing from other students and even neighbors. This is to ensure they have enough money to buy drugs they have already gotten addicted to it. Many parents end up spending a lot of money when trying to rehabilitate their sons and daughters from diseases related to drug abuse and alcoholism. Some students end up even dropping from school as a result of staying for many months or even years in the rehabilitation centers. Some students even become drug peddlers and traffickers, which is a serious

Drug Abuse & Alcoholism Sidney Cohen, 1981 An in depth and scholarly analysis of important areas of concern in the substance abuse field

Drug and Alcohol Abuse Marc A. Schuckit, 2012-12-06 When this series was conceived a book on substance abuse including alcohol and alcoholism was to be of the highest priority This priority was a reflection of my view that the subject is often inadequately or insufficiently taught in many training programs Few clinicians have had comprehensive didactic education in this area despite the frequency with which these problems are encountered in practice All too often these encounters are in situations in which accurate diagnosis and rapid treatment are of critical importance We wanted a book that would be concise and easily readable but also comprehensive in its presentation of the basic principles underlying clinical manifestations diagnosis and management It was of particular importance that the book also serve as an easy reference guide in emergency situations Marc Schuckit a man with impeccable credentials as a scholar and an experienced clinician in this field produced just such a book with his critically acclaimed first edition That volume rapidly became a resource of great significance for psychiatrists psychotherapists and physicians in general It has been adopted as a text in medical schools and residency training as well as for courses in psychology emergency medicine social work and nursing The entire volume has been revised and updated to reflect changes in knowledge and clinical practice since the publication of the first edition and in order to keep the comprehensive references current There is a new chapter on phencyclidine and another on caffeine and nicotine

Recent Developments in Alcoholism Marc Galanter, 2013-11-22 From the President of the Research Society on Alcoholism In recent years increasingly convincing evidence in support of a biobehavioral conceptual model of the etiology of alcoholism has emerged In this model the disorder is perceived as arising from the interaction of genetic/biological vulnerability and psychosocial risk Drinking or alcohol seeking is a metric trait Alcoholism which is a state of abnormally intense alcohol seeking behavior that over time leads to the alcohol dependence syndrome lies at the extreme high end of this quantitative measure Metric traits are influenced by multiple genes the extent of genetic loading of biological risk for alcoholism would be different in different individuals Added to this kind of variability is the wide range of options for exposure to the psychosocial risk factors of heavy drinking provided by modern society Further environmental provocation also changes when life events change It is not surprising therefore from the combination of the kinds of genetic and environmental variability described above that there is a wide array of patterns of expression of the disorder alcoholism referred to by some as alcoholisms In the search for understanding of underlying mechanisms and rational bases for potential therapy it is important to focus our attention on the final common pathway of this disorder alcohol seeking behavior This series ever since its beginning in 1983 has been sensitive to the complexities of the interaction between biological and psychosocial risk factors in alcoholism
