Animals and Ethics Angela Bates, Edward Carpenter, 1980 The Ethics of Animal Experimentation Donna Yarri, 2005-08-18 The ethical treatment of animals has become an issue of serious moral concern Many people are challenging long held assumptions about animals and raising questions about their status and treatment What is the relationship between humans and animals Do animals have moral standing Do we have direct or indirect duties to animals Does human benefit always outweigh animal suffering The use of animals for experimentation raises all of these questions in a particularly insistent way Donna Yarri gives an overview of the current state of the discussion and presents an argument for significantly restricted animal experimentation Pointing to the similarities between humans and animals she argues that the actual differences are differences of degree rather than kind Animal cognition and animal sentience together are the basis for the claim that experimental animals do have rights Examining arguments in the disciplines of ethology philosophy science and theology Yarri makes a case for placing substantial restrictions on animal experimentation Grounding her examination in Christian theology she formulates a more humane approach to animal experimentation She concludes with a concrete burden benefit analysis that can serve as the foundation for informed decision making The Ethics of Animal Experimentation serves as both a handbook of animal rights theory and a practical guide to navigating the complexities of animal experimentation As animal experimentation features in an increasing number of scientific endeavors it is an ethical issue that requires our immediate attention Yarri's unique contribution forges a path toward an ethical practice of animal
