Anna All Alone:

Real and Phantom Pains, 2014-10-09 An anthology of ten plays embodying the Russian literary movement that began in the late twentieth century. The plays selected for this anthology reflect the issues and styles typical of the new wave of dramatic writing in Russia. New drama flourished almost exclusively in small spaces often in dingy basements that employed and accommodated small numbers of people. The big theaters largely turned a blind eye to what was happening on small stages and in backrooms in playhouses, libraries and community centers in a few chosen hot spots around Russia, primarily Moscow, Yekaterinburg and Togliatti. In many cases they took actively hostile stances toward it. This would change, however. And by the beginning of the century's second decade, new drama was threatening to become a mainstream phenomenon. Not every theater staged plays associated with new drama, but almost every one began staging plays influenced by the themes, methods and language of the new drama movement. Featuring work from Yury Klavdiev, Olga Mukhina, Pavel Pryazhko, Vasily Sigarev, Maksym Kurochkin, Mikhail Durnenkov, Vyacheslav Durnenkov, Yaroslava Pulinovich, Yelena Gremina and Maxim Osipov. Few people know more about what is happening on the Moscow scene than John Freedman, including few Russians. As Moscow Times theater critic throughout the post-Soviet period, John could well have seen more theatrical productions in Russia than anyone else. I can't imagine anyone who would do a better job. Blair A. Ruble, Director, Program on Global Sustainability Resilience, Woodrow Wilson Center. While other existing volumes focus on 18th, 19th and early 20th century Russian drama, Freedman's edition would present the unique and important contributions of the new generation of Russian writers portraying the realities and experiences of a post-Soviet generation. John has carefully selected a representative cohort of ten of the most visible, productive and influential of these writers for the volume. Thomas J. Garza, University Distinguished Teaching Associate Professor, University of Texas at Austin.

Three Lives, Gertrude Stein, 1994. The first of Gertrude Stein's publications, this accessible 1909 volume was an experimental work for its time and established the author's reputation as a master of language and a voice for women. In three separate tales, Stein invests the lives of three working-class women with extraordinary insights into race, sex, gender and other feminist issues.

Ivanov, Anton Pavlovich Chekhov, 1999. THE STORY: Ivanov, a landowner who farms a large estate, is in debt and his wife, whom he no longer loves, is dying of tuberculosis. He owes money everywhere and has reached the point of despair. The love of Sasha, a young girl in the neighborhood.

Anna's Shattered Faith, Kendall Evans, 2011-02. The day Anna Hampton's husband Zach was killed was the day she lost her faith. Ranger Daniel Cochran represents everything she doesn't like. Not only is he a lawman, but he's a God-fearing man like Zach. His faith might work for him, but the only thing Anna saw it do was get her husband killed. The Ranger's presence grows more and more welcome, especially when danger lurks around every corner and Anna is caught in the middle. Ranger Daniel Cochran knows when he arrives in Strawberry Junction, Texas, he's in for a battle. Taking the position as the town's sheriff is only a temporary assignment. His real job in the small, close-knit community is to catch a killer, the same
