The Mobile Workshop Clapperton Chakanetsa Mavhunga, 2018-06-01 How the presence of the tsetse fly turned the African forest into an open laboratory where African knowledge formed the basis of colonial tsetse control policies The tsetse fly is a pan African insect that bites an infective forest animal and ingests blood filled with invisible parasites which it carries and transmits into cattle and people as it bites them leading to a n gana animal trypanosomiasis and sleeping sickness In The Mobile Workshop Clapperton Chakanetsa Mavhunga examines how the presence of the tsetse fly turned the forests of Zimbabwe and southern Africa into an open laboratory where African knowledge formed the basis of colonial tsetse control policies He traces the pestiferous work that an indefatigable mobile insect does through its movements and the work done by humans to control it Mavhunga s account restores the central role not just of African labor but of African intellect in the production of knowledge about the tsetse fly He describes how European colonizers built on and beyond this knowledge toward destructive and toxic methods including cutting down entire forests forced prophylactic resettlement massive destruction of wild animals and extensive spraying of organochlorine pesticides Throughout Mavhunga uses African terms to describe the African experience taking vernacular concepts as starting points in writing a narrative of ruzivo knowledge rather than viewing Africa through foreign keywords The tsetse fly became a site of knowledge production a mobile workshop of pestilence Cumulated Index Medicus ,1969 Governing Health Systems in Africa Martyn Sama,Vinh-Kim Nguyen,2008 Drawing on various disciplinary perspectives this book re focuses the debate on what makes a good health system with a view to clarifying the uses of social science research in thinking about health care issues in Africa The explosion of the HIV AIDS pandemic the persistence of malaria as a major killer and the resurgence of diseases like tuberculosis which were previously under control have brought about changes in the health system with implications for its governance especially in view of the diminished capacity of the public health facilities to cope with a complex range of expanded needs Government responsibilities and objectives in the health sector have been redefined with private sector entities both for profit and not for profit playing an increasingly visible role in health care provisions The reasons for collaborative patterns vary but chronic under funding of publicly financed health services is often an important factor Processes of decentralisation and health sector reforms have had mixed effects on health care system performance while private health insurance markets and private clinics are pointers to a growing stratification of the health market in line with the intensified income and social differentiation that has occurred over the last two decades These developments call for health sector reforms Index Veterinarius ,2005 Treatise on Water Science ,2010-09-01 Water quality and management are of great significance globally as the demand for clean potable water far exceeds the availability Water science research brings together the natural and applied sciences engineering chemistry law and policy and economics and the Treatise on Water Science seeks to unite these areas through contributions from a global team of author experts The 4 volume set examines topics in depth with an emphasis on innovative research and technologies for those working in applied areas Published in partnership with and endorsed by the International Water Association IWA demonstrating the authority of the content Editor in Chief Peter Wilderer a Stockholm Water Prize recipient has assembled a world class team of volume editors and contributing authors Topics related to water resource management water quality and
