Graham, J., & Harvey, C. (2002). How do CFOs make capital budgeting and capital structure decisions?. Journal of applied corporate finance, 15(1), 8-23.

The chosen article highlights the ways by which Chief Financial Officers utilize the concept of capital budgeting to make major business-related decisions. The paper is credible as the authors are associate professors of finance from Duke University, Fuqua School of Business. Anonymous scholars reviewed the article. The main theme presented here is the corporate practice and progress made in the areas of capital budgeting. The authors have conducted a survey consisting of 392 CFOs. The findings suggest that CFOs use the concept of discounted cash flow methods for evaluating a project (Graham & Harvey, 2002). This concept is also taught in business schools. The findings also suggest that capital budgeting provides financial flexibility. The need of corporate houses is to accept such useful concepts of financial theory. It is important to consider the author's opinions because they have emphasized utilizing the various components of the financial theory.

Harris, M., & Raviv, A. (1996). The capital budgeting process: Incentives and information. The Journal of Finance, 51(4), 1139-1174.

The authors in this article studied the process of capital allocation in business firms. Emphasize has been given upon the process of capital budgeting in fund allocation. The paper is authentic because it is published on Online Wiley Library and the authors are professors of Finance and Business Economics from Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago. The purpose of the study is to identify problems associated with incentives as well as information within businesses (Harris & Raviv, 1996). The implications of imperfections are severe. It can affect capital productivity. The findings also suggest that Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents, 1970 Raising Entrepreneurial Capital John B.

Vinturella, Suzanne M. Erickson, 2013-01-16 Raising Entrepreneurial Capital guides the reader through the stages of successfully financing a business. The book proceeds from a basic level of business knowledge assuming that the reader understands simple financial statements, has selected a specific business, and knows how to write a business plan. It provides a broad summary of the subjects that people typically research, such as: How should your company position itself to attract private equity investment? and What steps can you take to improve your company's marketability? Much has changed since the book was first published, and this second edition places effects of the global recession in the context of entrepreneurship, including the debt vs equity decision, the options available to smaller businesses, and the considerations that lead to rapid growth, including venture capital, IPOs, angels, and incubators. Unlike other books of the genre, Raising Entrepreneurial Capital includes several chapters on worldwide variations in forms and availability of pre-seed capital, incubators, and the business plans they create, with case studies from Europe, Latin America, and the Pacific Rim. Combines solid theory with a practitioner's experience and insights. Case studies illustrate theory throughout the book. Updated to reflect the realities of the global economic recession.

Altman, Edith Hotchkiss, Wei Wang, 2019-03-26 A comprehensive look at the enormous growth and evolution of distressed debt markets, corporate bankruptcy, and credit risk models. This Fourth Edition of the most authoritative finance book on the topic updates and expands its discussion of financial distress and bankruptcy, as well as the related topics dealing with leveraged finance, high yield, and distressed debt markets. It offers state-of-the-art analysis and research on U.S. and international restructurings, applications of distress prediction models in financial and managerial markets, bankruptcy costs, restructuring outcomes, and more.

Research in Accounting Regulation Gary Previts, 2000-12-20 The scope of service provided by professional accountants is influenced by legislation and case law, as well as the dictates of a variety of government and private sector agencies, including State Boards of Accountancy, Academic Accreditation Bodies, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission, independent standard setting bodies such as the Federal Accounting Standards Advisory Board, the Financial Accounting Standards Board, and self-regulatory organizations such as State Societies of CPAs and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. There are equivalent and emerging national bodies that exist in most developed and developing countries, and further, there are emerging global coordinating entities as well, which attempt to coordinate the activities among nations. It is important for academics, students, practitioners, regulators, and researchers to consider, study, and understand the role and relationship of such bodies with the practice and content of our discipline. Research in Accounting Regulation is a refereed annual serial that seeks to publish high quality manuscripts which address regulatory issues and policy affecting the practice of accountancy broadly defined. Topics of interest include research based upon self-regulatory activities, case law, and litigation, government and quasi-governmental regulation, and the economics of regulation.

including modeling The serial aims to encourage the submission of original empirical behavioral or applied research manuscripts that consider strategic and policy implications for regulation regulatory models and markets Sources of Business Information Edwin Truman Coman,2023 This title is part of UC Press s Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Presss mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Marketing Information Guide ,1968 Management Accounting, Organizational Theory and Capital Budgeting: 3Surveys Robert W Scapens,1984-11-19
